THE present volume has made its appearance with as much dispatch as possible; and it is hoped, not without improvements. The Editor thinks he need not apologize to his readers for the complete list of the Al-dine editions introduced under the article MANUTIUS. It is true it takes up much room, upwards of thirty pages, but its importance must plead its excuse; and it was almost impossible to condense it any farther, as scarcely a word has been preserved but what was necessary to convey some tolerable knowledge of the edition specified.

In a former advertisement, it was proposed to introduce the Greek and Latin Medical writers, under the article SCRIPTORES; but it has been thought proper as that article is very miscellaneous, to bring in the chief of these under MEDICI. If any writers of importance in this department of science be omitted, they will probably be met with under their respective articles. It was at first designed to introduce none but ancient classical writers on medicine, as the whole system of modern practice is so essentially different from the ancient, that former works of this kind are become nearly obsolete: this design, though not scrupulously adhered to, has had considerable influence to induce the Editor to omit several works of this class, which, though of high repute in their own time, are generally neglected in ours. When all revolution in this science shall end, is out of the reach of conjecture.

From the very candid Review of the fourth volume in the CHRISTIAN OBSERVER, for April 1804, the Editor is concerned to find that he has wholly omitted Episcopus and Luther. These certainly should have a place—for though from the nature of the work several respectable authors must necessarily be omitted, yet such as the above should not be passed by without due notice. An appendix to the last volume will set these and some similar matters right. In the mean time, the Conductors of that useful work are requested to accept the Editor's best thanks for their friendly hints, and observations.

In occasionally consulting the preceding volumes, several errors have been detected: a list of these it is thought proper to insert here, that the less experienced reader may not through them be led into mistakes. On a closer inspection, others perhaps of equal magnitude may be discovered, of which, at the conclusion of the work, the reader may expect to be duly informed. In abridging the titles of books some mistakes have been made, but they are not of consequence enough to embarrass any scholar.

The sixth volume is in the press and will be published with all convenient speed.

*.* The seventh volume of the Polyglott prepared for the press by Dr. S. Clarke, referred to at the top of page 267, vol. i. I am informed is now in the Bodleian library.

April 3, 1804.

VOL. I.

Page 42, line 10, &c. for, and in the Corpus Poetar, read and, cum Anacreonte Mich. Maittaire, 4to. Lond. 1740.

Page 42, line 13, for 1761, read 1751, 1757, & 1777.

— 46, — 14, read Serie dell' editione Aldini.

— 48, — 9, for 1440, read 1490.

— 52, — 14, read ALEXANDRI TRALLIANI.

— 57, — 9, after 5s. read Harwood. Others say correct.

— ibid. — ult. for 4to. read 12mo.

— 81, dele lines 9 and 10.

— 105, dele lines 23 and 24.

— 107, dele lines 5—8.

— 112, line antepenult. for 1787, read 1584—87.

Which edition should be placed after that of Aldus on the same page.

— 152, line 1, for Auctores de Re Rustica, see CATO, COLUMELLA, PALLADIUS, VARRO, and the article SCRIPTORES.

The account of the imprisonment of John Fust, and his discharge by the Parliament of Paris, as mentioned page 189, is probably not correct. However it is mentioned by authors of respectability.

— 180, line 25, read Agricolantium.

— 189, dele line ult. and page 190; dele first 8 lines and read — sine ulla nota, fol. magno. in character. Goth. In a copy of this extremely rare edition, a note is found added by the illuminator, attributing this work to Bamler, an ancient printer of Augsburg; and intimating that it was finished in 1466.

— 192, line 9, for esset, read esse.

— 205, — 21, for 1691, read 1656.

— 207, — 3, for Latina, read Latine.

— 215, — 25, for 1569, read 1568.

— 236, — 13, for give, read gives.

— 240, dele lines 19—21.

— 244, line 17, for 1559, read 1568.

VOL. II.

Page 28, line 22, for 1537, read 1527.

— 115, — antepen. read Passeratii.

— 117, — 13, after Gr. et Lat. add 4to.

— 238, — 8, should be inserted after line 23d.

— 261, — 16, dele and.

— 240, — 7, for 1473, read 473.

VOL. III.

— 10, — 11, for Antver. read Amstel.

— 14, — 6, for 1789, read 1709.

Page 29. There is reason to believe that the edition of the Hypnerotomachia, said to have been printed at Trevisa with a counterfeit date (1467), is the Aldine edition mentioned above of 1499, from which the leaf containing the errata has been torne, so that the conclusion of the preceding page which gives the date of the composition of the work, has been mistaken for the date of the impression.

- 64, dele lines 13—18.
- 136, dele lines 11—14.
- 153, line 3, read 1628, ibid. line 6, read Mors.
- 209, — 21, after been, add since.
- 240, — antepen. read Bessarionem.
- 247, — 9, for Iliyrici, read Illyrici.
- 294, — 23, &c. for the correction of this passage, see KEMPIS, in vol. iv. p. 221.

VOL. IV.

Page 88, line 4, after letters put a comma, and read the following The with a small t instead of a capital.

- 125, — 3, read Herodotus.
- 126, — 17, read Iliad.
- 158, — 13, read excerptis.
- 161, — 21, read Martyrum.
- 170, — 20, for Richard I. King of England, read Robert Duke of Normandy, son of William I. King, &c.
- 171, — 7, read tibi.
- 260, — 16, for where, read were.
- 285, — 19, for suppli- read supple-
- 304, — 19, for Snessa, read Suessa.
- 308, — 25, for infiniet, read infinite

VOL. V.

- 79, — 11, for LETHI, read SETHI, ibid. line 14, for Lethus, read Sethus.

JOANNIS MABILLONII Liturgia Gallicana, in qua veteris Missæ, quæ ante annos 1000 apud gallos in usu erat, forma ritusque ex antiquis Monumentis eruuntur. Paris. 1729, 4to.

———— Musæum Italicum, 4to. Par. 1687—39, 2 vol. & ibid. 1724, 2 vol. Best edition.

———— Vetera Analecta, fol. Paris. 1723.

See DACHERIUS.

———— Annales ordinis S. Benedicti, fol. Par. 1703, & ann. seqq. 6 vol. & Venet. fol. 1733, 9 vol. Very inferior to the Paris edition. Father Mabillon published only 4 vol. of this work, the other were added by Ruinart and Thuillier.

———— De Re Diplomatica libri sex, Paris. 1681 & 1709. This last edition is by Ruinart, and is esteemed preferable to the other.

———— Supplementum librorum De Re Diplomatica, fol. Par. 1704. A work of extraordinary merit and utility, which gives rules by which the age of ancient MSS. may be ascertained. It is the same to Latin MSS. as the Paleographia Græca of Father Montfaucon is to the Greek. The Supplement was added in consequence of the opposition made by Father Germon. See GERMON.
VOL. V. B

John Mabillon was born in 1632, at St. Pierre-Mont, in the diocese of Rheims. He took the habit of the Benedictines of St. Maur in 1652, and was made by his superiors the demonstrator of the treasury and ancient monuments of the Abby of St. Dennis in 1663. Here he might have continued perhaps all his days had he not fortunately broke a mirror which was supposed to have belonged to the poet Virgil. This so afflicted his mind that he determined to abandon his present employment. Dom D'Acheri obtained his assistance in the compilation of his Spicilegium (see DACHERIUS), in which he acquitted himself to his own honour and the credit of his employer. His congregation, then engaged in publishing a complete edition of the Fathers, employed Mabillon on the works of St. Bernard: this work he completed in 1690, 2 vol. fol. and it is the Edit. opt. of that author. The minister Colbert, to whom his merit was well known, offered him a pension of 2000 livres; but this the pious Mabillon refused, saying, What might men think of me, if I who am a poor man, and born of obscure parents, should seek that in the service of religion which I could not obtain in a secular life? This sentiment is worthy of a man of God. Alas for the man who thrusts himself into the priest's office, either for a morsel of bread, or to enrich himself by that means !

This laborious, humble and pious Benedictine died of a retention of urine, at the Abby of St. Germain de Prés, December 27, 1707, aged 75 years.

Sancti MACARII Homiliæ L. ex Bibl. Reg. Gr. 8vo. Paris. Morel. 1559.

———— Gr. et Lat. fol. Paris. 1622. Connected with the works of Gregory Thaumaturgus.

———— Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Lips. 1698 & 1699, 2 vol. A very neat edition.

Macarius was an Egyptian monk, born at Alexandria about A. D. 300. He was at first a baker, but having been converted to the Christian religion he retired to the desert, in which he spent sixty years. He died about A. D. 390. His Homilies breathe a spirit of deep piety, and contain the whole substance of Ascetic Theology.

MACARII minoris Sermo de exitu animæ Justorum et Peccatorum, quomodo seperantur a corpore, et in quo Statu manent. a Guil. Cave, cum Interpret. Hen. Warthoni, in Hist. Litter. Script. Eccles. ad A. C. 373.

This author was also an Egyptian, and died about A. D. 394. His Codex Monachorum was published at Rome in 1661 with the Codex Regu- larum. Some works attributed to this author may be found in the Thesaurum Asceticum a Petro Possino, Gr. et Lat. 4to. Tolosæ, 1684.

MACCABEORUM libri tres, fol. Gr. et Lat. Antv. Plant. 1584, & 8vo. Rapheleng. 1608 & 1613.

———— primus liber, a Drusio, Gr. 4to. Franecq. 1600. These books are generally published in all editions of the Apocrypha.

The Maccabees, or Asmonean Princes, flourished about 140 years before Christ. Who the author of these books was, is quite uncertain.

MACARONIC Poems.

MACHARONEA varia; diversis linguis conscripta, præsertim latinè. In Gothic characters, 16mo. without place or date. A singular and very rare collection. Sold at Gaignat's sale for 46 livres.

Merlini Cocaii opus Macaronicorum. See COCAIUS.

Guarini Capelli Sarsinus, &c. See CAPELLUS.

Meigra Enterprisa Catoliqui imperatoris, quando de A. D. 1536, veniebat per Provensam bene corrozatus, in postam prendere Fransam, cum villis de Provensa. per Ant. Arenam Bastifausa-tam Avenione 1537, 12mo. A satirical description of Charles V. war against France. For other pieces of this facetious author, see ARENA, in vol. i. p. 98.

Petri Porci pugna porcorum, 8vo. Antv. 1530.

Each word of this curious work begins with the letter P.

Hugbaldi, Ecloga de Calvis, 8vo. Basil. 1546. Each word in this curious composition begins with the letter C.

Epitaphia honorandi Magistri nostri Petri a Cornibus. Paris. 1542, 8vo.

Harenga habita in Monasterio Cluniacensi, ad Card. de Lotharingiâ pro repetendâ coronâ aureâ, quam abstulit a Jacobitis Urbis Metensis. Rhemis in campaniâ, 8vo. 1566.

Recitus veritabilis super esmeuta terribili Pay-sanorum de Ruellio a Jano Carillio Fray. abs. anno.—Epistola Macaronica Arthusii ad D. de Parisiis super attestazione suâ, justificanti et niti-dante Patres Jesuitas. abs. not. editionis.—De Bello Huguenotico poema abs. loc. et an. all in 8vo.

Joan. Bapt. Lichiardi Cogasanga Reistrorum Sayssso-Lansquettorum. Paris. 1588, 8vo. Lib. rar.

Andreæ Braiani, Fabula Macaronea cui titulus est : Carnevale, Braschiani, 1612, 8vo.

Magistri Stoppini Capricia Macaronica. Venet. 1670, 16mo. A curious little work, often re-printed.

Carmina rariorum Macaronicum delectus. In usum Ludorum Appollinariuin. Edinb. 1801, 8vo. This contains Drummond's Polemo Middinia, and several other tracts. For the origin of the word Macaronic, see vol. ii. p. 252.

MACHELII Tractatus De Morbo Gallico, Venet. 1555; 8vo.

MACER (Æmilius) De virtutibus herbarum, 4to. Neapoli sine Typogr. indicio, 1477. A very rare book, and the first edition of this work, with a date.

———— 4to. sine ulla nota, cum fig. Xylographicis. An edition of the fifteenth century.

———— 4to. Venet. Bern. de Vitalibus, 1506.

———— 8vo. Basil. Joan. Fabrus Emmeus Juliacenis, 1527.

———— a Jo. Atrociano, 8vo. Friburg. 1530.

———— a Jano Cornario, 8vo. Bas. 1540.

———— cum Comment. Guil. Gueroaldi, 8vo. Francof. 1540. cum figuris. A fine edition.

———— a G. Pictorio Vilingano, 8vo. Basil. 1558. Annexed to Strabi Galli Hortulus.

———— ab Henr. Ranzovio, 8vo. Hamb. 1596. Best edition. This work is also found among the Medici Antiqui, fol. Ven. Ald. 1547.

———— Fragmenta, in Mich. Maittaire oper. et Fragmentis Vet. Poet. Latin. Lond. 1713, fol. vol. ii. p. 1528.

Æmilius Macer was a Latin poet, born at Verona in the reign of Augustus. It is said he wrote a poem on Serpents, Plants, and Birds; and another on the Destruction of Troy; but these are both lost, for the work mentioned above is evidently spurious. The unknown author seems to have lived posterior to the time of Charlemagne. He was a bad botanist, and an indifferent poet.

Hierolexicon, a Dominico MACRO, Rom. 1677, fol.

Salmonii MACRINI hymnorum selectorum, libritres. Paris. Rob. Steph. 1540, 8vo.

Aurelii Theodosii MACROBII Expositio in Somnium Scipionis, et Saturnalia, fol. Venet. Jenson, 1472. EDIT. PRINC. Sold at Dr. Askew's sale for 8l. and at the Pinellian sale for 33l. 12s.

———— fol. Brix. Boninus de Boninis, 1483.

A very beautiful edition. 4l. 4s.

———— fol. Mediol. Schinzenzeler, 1489.

———— fol. Bonon. 1501.

———— a Nich. Angelio, 8vo. Florent. Junta, 1515. 8s.

———— a Bern. Donato, 8vo. Venet. Ald. 1517 & 1528. Annexed to Censorinus. 8s.

———— ex emendat. Jo. Rivi Veneti, fol. Basil. 1519.

———— ab Arnoldo Vesaliensi, fol. Colon. 1521. A good edition: reprinted in 1526, 8vo. and in 1527.

———— 8vo. Lugd. Gryph. 1532, 1542, 1548, 1550, 1554, 1555, 1556, 1560, & 1585.

———— a Joac. Camerario, fol. Basil. 1535.

A better edition than any of those made in the sixteenth century.

———— ab Hen. Steph. 8vo. Par. 1585.

———— a Jo. Isuaco Pontano, 8vo. Lug. Bat. Plant. 1597.

———— ab eodem, et Jo. Meursio, 8vo. Lug. Bat. 1628.

Aur. Theo. MACROBII Saturn. a Pontano cum Meursii notis. Oxon. 1665, 8vo.

———— cum not. var. et Jac. Gronovii, 8vo. Lug. Bat. 1670. 5s.

———— ex eadem edit. 8vo. Lond. 1694.

Dr. Harwood says, that “ this has fewer inaccuracies than a scholar might justly expect from a London edition of a Latin Classic.” This reflection is certainly not very liberal ; and yet the best friends of the London editors must allow that in many cases, too much cause has been given for it : but London is retrieving its credit ; and it is to be hoped, will yet rank in typographical excellence with Paris or Parma.

———— a Vulpiis fratribus, 8vo. Patav. Comin. 1736. A good and correct edition.

———— cum not. var. et Jo. Car. Zeunii, 8vo. Lips. 1774. A good edition ; paper bad as usual from Lipsig.

———— 8vo. Biponti. 1788.

De Differentiis et Societatibus Græci et Latini verbi, auctore JOANNE, a Jo. Obsopæo, 8vo. Par. 1588. A collection from Macrobius, supposed to have been made by Joan. Scot. Erigena. It is connected with the Grammatici Veteres ab Eli. Putschio, 4to. Hanov. 1605.

Ambrosius Aurelius Theodosius Macrobius was one of the chamberlains of the Emperor Theodosius, in the latter part of the fourth century : of what country he was is very uncertain. He himself says he was not a Roman ; the citizens of Parma say he was born in their city. It is likely he was a Greek; and some think he was a Christian. His Saturnalia are a miscellany of criticism and antiquities, full of erudition, and very useful. They are similar in their plan to the Noctes Atticæ of Aulus Gellius. He termed these miscellanies Saturnalia, because, during the vacation observed on these feasts of Saturn, he collected the principal Literati of Rome in his own house, and conversed with them on all kinds of subjects, and afterwards set down what appeared to him most interesting in their discourses. The Latinity of Macrobius is far from being pure, especially in his exposition of Scipio's Dream; but his works are, notwithstanding, very valuable.

Georgii MACROPEDII Petriscus, Fabula jucundissima. Busiducis, 8vo. 1536.

De Bibliothecis atque Archivis virorum clarissimorum libelli et commentationes, &c. a Joac. MADERO, cum secunda parte per Joan. And. Schmidt, Helmstadii, 1702 & 1705, 4to.

Museum Veronense, hoc est Antiquarum Inscriptionum atque Anaglyphorum Collectio, a Scipione MAFFEIO cum fig. Veron. 1749, fol.

———— Origines Etruscæ, fol. Lips. 1731.

———— Cassiodori Complexiones in Epistolas et Acta Apostolorum et Apocalypsim ex vetustissimis MSS. erutæ. Flor. 1721, & Rom. 1738, ———— Supplementum Acaciarum, monumenta nunquam edita continens. Venet. 1728.

———— Verona illustrata, fol. Veron. 1732, & ibid. 4 vol. 8vo.

Fransis Scipio Maffei was born at Verona in 1675, of an illustrious family. He was a universal scholar, and excelled in every branch of literature. His countrymen almost idolized him, and he highly honoured his country in return; for in his Origines Etruscæ, he has endeavoured to prove that Etruria was the general name of Italy; and that the Tuscans were anciently possessed of the whole country. This learned man died in 1755, aged eighty years.

Frans. Mar. MAGGI Syntagmatum Linguarum orientalium quæ in Georgiæ regionibus audiuntur, Libri duo. Rom. Typ. Congr. de Propaganda Fide 1643, fol.

———— Annales Typographicæ ab artis In-ventione: cum Indicibus et Supplementis a Denis: et duplex editio tomi primi, 4to. 8 vol. Hagæ, 1719—1789. 8l. 8s. A work of extraordinary merit, the first volume of which was published at the Hague in 1719, the second in 1722, and the third in 1725. In 1733 he published a new edition at Leyden of volume the first, sometimes termed volume the fourth; it is considerably augmented, but the author advises the reader to refer to volume first of 1719, because there are several important matters in it which are not introduced into the edition of 1733. In 1741 he published the Index to this valuable work at London, which makes volume the fifth with the Leyden edition of volume the third. The valuable Supplement of Mr. Denis was published at Vienna in 1789, 2 vol. 4to. Of these valuable works G. W. Panzer is now giving a new and enlarged edition, entitled, Annales Typographici ab artis inventæ origine ad annum MD. post Maittairii Denisii aliorum doctissimorum curas in ordinem redacti emendati et aucti. Norim. 1793—1802, 11 vol. 4to. 10 volumes are already published.

Michael Maittaire was born in 1668. He was second master of Westminster school from 1695 till 1699. He died in 1747, aged seventy-nine years. To him the republic of letters is indebted for many valuable and correct editions of the Greek and Latin Classics.

This work was never finished, the author being prevented from accomplishing his design, by the Emperor Charles V. having destroyed Terouenne, the capital of the Morins (the people of the diocese of St. Omars, Ypres, &c.), where the work was carried on. It is a scarce work; and the third volume is particularly so. 4l. 14s. 6d.

F loruit Augusti. Lector amice vale.

It contains seventy-two leaves on an elegant roman letter: without signatures, catch-words, or number of pages: the initial letters all flourished.

Joannis Regiomontanus erected a press at his own house in Nuremberg in 1470, where it is likely he printed this work about 1472. It must therefore pass for the EDITIO PRINCEPS, till some copy with a better title be discovered.

MANILII (Marci.) Poetæ clarissimi ASTRONOMICON, fol. Bononiæ impressum per Ugonem Rugerium et Dom. Bertochum, 1474. EDIT. SECUND. This extremely scarce book contains but eighty-eight leaves, thirty-five lines on each page, without registers. It is divided into eleven gatherings. The character is neat and round, similar to that with which Juvenal and Persius were printed Brix. 1473, but rather smaller. At Mr. Paris's sale in 1791, it sold for 21l. 10s.

———— 4to. Neapoli, per Jodocum Hoensteyn, alias Havenstain: absque anni indicio. Denis supposes it to have been printed in 1475. Sold at the Pinellian sale for 10l. 15s.

———— 8vo. Biponti ———

It is generally supposed that Marcus Manilius, the astronomical poet, flourished under Augustus, or Tiberius. Though his stile is in general pure and worthy of the Augustan age, yet there are certain expressions, and peculiar turns, which are not to be found in poets of that age. But the novelty of his subject may plead his excuse in these matters. There are so many passages in Manilius concerning his own times, and which all evidently relate to the time of Augustus, that he is at present reckoned of that age, though not one ancient writer speaks of such a poet about those times. The five books which remain of this writer's astronomy relate only to the fixed stars.

Baptist Spagnoli, surnamed Mantuanus, because born in that city, was a carmelite. It is said he was the fruit of an illegitimate commerce, and first saw the day in 1444. His poetic vein was so fertile, that he composed not less than 59,000 verses.

Aldus Pius Romanus MANUTIUS, Paulus MANUTIUS, and Aldus MANUTIUS, jun.

As both the accounts of these great men, and the list of their editions of the Greek and Latin Classics, given in the first volume of this work, are in some particulars incorrect, and in others defective, the editor rejoices that it is now in his power to perfect the whole from the excellent work of Mr. RENOUARD just published, entitled, Annales de L'Imprimerie des ALDE ou L' Histoire de trois MANUCE et de leurs Editions, 2 tom. Par. 1803. As all preceding bibliographers had fallen into innumerable mistakes concerning the productions of the Manutian, or Aldine presses, Mr. Renouard found it necessary to form a collection of these editions that he might describe each, not from reports of former bibliographers, but from the books themselves. In this laborious and expensive work he was long employed, and at last had the good fortune to bring his labour to the most favourable conclusion, by purchasing in 1794 the valuable collection of Aldine editions formed by the late Cardinal de Brienne, who had been long engaged in a similar work to that of Mr. Renouard, and had published a work entitled, Serie dell' editioni Aldini. As typography and literature owe more to the MANUTHI than to all others, the inventors of the art excepted; and as a list of the works published by the three ALDI, or MANUTHI in the interval of 104 years, will serve not only to shew the almost incredible industry of these three printers, but also point out those works to which the attention of the literati of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries was directed, and by which their refined and elegant taste was formed, the readers of the Bibliographical Dictionary will doubtless rejoice to find here a correct copy of the Catalogue des Editions Aldines rangé par ordre de Matieres, taken from volume second of the above work. The editions of Italian works are here also introduced; because the editor wishes to place before the eye of his reader every edition which proceeded from these eminent printers and authors; as the very dearest interests of literature are either immediately or remotely connected with them. Besides, this list may serve as a directory to the collectors of those invaluable Aldine editions, and prevent them from being imposed on by spurious and counterfeit copies, on which the classical collector often unwarily expends both his time and his money. None of the counterfeit editions are introduced here; nor any of those which are suppositious, unless noted as such, so that the reader may be assured that the pretended Aldine edition, which is not found here, is either a counterfeit, or does not exist.

The editions are aranged under five distinct classes, viz. THEOLOGY, JURISPRUDENCE, ARTS and SCIENCES, BELLES LETTRES and HISTORY. Different editions of the same work are aranged in chronological order. Most of these works were printed at ROME, VENICE, and BOLOGNA. At the former city not many; at the second, a vast majority, and at the latter place only a few. Though some think that even these were printed at Venice, and only had Bologna put in the title, because they were chiefly printed for Ant. Manutius, Paul's brother, who lived there: as it is not likely that a printing-office belonging to the Aldi was ever established at that city.

A complete list of all the editions published by the three MANUTHI, viz. Aldus Pius Romanus PAULUS MANUTIUS, and ALDUS MANUTIUS, junior, from the year 1494, when ALDUS MANUTIUS, senior, published his first edition, till 1597, when ALDUS, junior died: arranged according to their subjects; including those also published from the Aldine press by Andreas Asulanus, during the minority of Paul Manutius.

In the following list V. stands for Venice, R. for Rome, and B. for Bologna.

The above is a complete list of every Aldine edition from the Lascaris printed by Aldus senior, 1494, to the Dispreggio del mondo, by Aldus junior, in 1597.

Aldus Manutius, surnamed also Pius Romanus, was born at Bassiano, in the duchy of Sermonetta, in 1446 or 47, and died at Venice in 1515.

From this period the Aldine printing-office was managed by Andrew Asulanus (the father-in-law of Aldus), till his death in 1529. During this interval, all editions from that press bore the following Imprint. In Ædibus Aldi et Andreæ Asulani Soceri.

After the death of Andrew, disputes arose between his children and those of Aldus, which caused the office to be shut up from 1529 till 1533, when Paul Manutius, Aldus's son, took the management of the whole upon himself in behalf of the heirs of both families: hence the editions from that time bore the Imprint, In Ædibus hæredum Aldi Manutii Romani, et Andreæ Asulani Soceri.

Paul Manutius carried on the business till his death, which happened in 1574.

He was succeeded by his son Aldus Manutius, junior, who continued the business till his death in 1597. As he died deeply in debt, his creditors seized on his presses, library, &c. and from that time the Aldine office was finally broken up, after having flourished with uncommon reputation for 104 years.

It seems strange that these eminent men should have gone by the appellation ALDI instead of MANUTHI, as ALDO was the baptismal name, and MANUZIO, written also Manutio, Manuccio, Manucio, and Mannucci, the name of the family. It would certainly have been more proper to have used the adjective Manutian than Aldine, but the latter has been universally adopted, and is likely now to remain.—si volet usus.

———— ab Erasmio Vindingio, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Hafniæ, 1662.

This work, with Hudson's Latin translation, is found also in the first volume of the Geographi Antiqui Minores, 8vo. Oxon. 1698—1703, 4 vol.

This author flourished under Theodosius II. about A. D. 410.

D. MARCI Autographon, a Jo. Dobrouski, Lat. 8vo. Pragæ, 1778.

This author supposed that St. Mark wrote his Gospel in Latin.

MARCI Monachi Sermones De Jejunio et de

Melchisedech, a Balth. Maria Remondini, Gr. et Lat. 4to. Rom. 1748. This author flourished in the fifth century.

MARCI Monachi quæ extant opera, Gr. 8vo. Par. Morel. 1563. Supposed to have been contemporary with the former. This edition contains also some fragments of Hesychius the Presbyter, who flourished about A. D. 420.

MARCI Barronis (vel Varronis) Ordines Finitium, in the Rei Agrariæ Auctores, a Goesio, 4to. Amst. 1674.

Joannes MARIANA: De Rebus Hispanicis, in fol. Toleti, 1592.—In 4to. Moguntiaë, 1605. These are the two best editions of this work. The first printed at Toledo, contains but twenty books. Mariana wrote the ten following, after these were published, and the edition at Mentz contains the whole work, divided into thirty books. As Mariana in this work goes not beyond Ferdinand the Catholic, it will be necessary to have a small piece wrote by Mariana himself, entitled, Summarium de Rebus Hispaniæ, in which he carries on his history from the Year 1515, to 1612. This piece was printed at Mentz in 1619, and is to be met with at the end of several copies of the history of the Mentz edition. This writer, who spares not kings themselves, when they were bad, has translated his history into Spanish, and the version is as much esteemed as the original Latin. He has been charged with too much moderation shewn to Protestantism, and accused of several mistakes in geography.

———— a Stephano Baluzio, fol. Paris. 1677, 2 vol. Annexed to Capitularium Regum Francorum, &c. A useful collection, containing much information on Ecclesiastical antiquity.

Marculfus was a French monk, who flourished about A. D. 660, though Launoy supposed he lived in the eighth century.

MARDOCHEI Esther liber, ex codic. Arundelliano et Alexandrino, Gr. 4to. 1655.

———— Gr. 4to. Lipsiæ, 1695.

———— a Vander Hardt, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Helm. 1717.

———— Fragmenta, Gr. Rom. 1772. Annexed to Daniel, with a very learned defence of the Septuagint version.

Mardocheus, or Mordecai, the uncle and tutor of Esther, a Jewish captive, afterwards queen to Artaxerxes Longimanus, is supposed, by the catholic writers, to have been the author of this book. It is found in every edition of the canonical scriptures. Mardocheus flourished about 570 years before Christ.

MARLIANI Galliæ Descriptio. Annexed to Cæsar's Commentaries, by Robert Stephens, Paris. 1544.

They contain all the leading events of the Grecian history till 60 years after the death of Alexander the great, about which time they were composed, yet they mention no Olympiad, nor any other standing æra, but account backwards from the time then present. These, with the Capitoline marbles, which contain a catalogue of the Roman magistrates, and the principal events of their history, during the time of the Commonwealth, are justly esteemed among the most valuable remains of monumental inscriptions.

———— 4to. Francq. 1696. 5s. Better than the Lipsig edition, but both vastly inferior to that of London. This is a chronological work of extraordinary merit.

Sir John Marsham was born in London 1602, where he died in 1685. In his Canon Chronicus he has cast great light on the ancient Egyptian chronology, which seemed to be nearly lost in impenetrable obscurity: this he did principally by proving that the Dynasties were not successive, but collateral. He has made some mistakes, which Prideaux, Shuckford and others have rectified.

MARTIALIS Epigrammata ex emendatione Georgii Merulae, fol. Vind. de Spira, absque loci et anni indicio. EDIT. PRINC. Supposed to have been printed in 1470. It is one of the rarest in the class of Editiones Principes. Sold at Dr. Askew's sale for 17l. At Mr. Prefond's sale in 1757, it sold for 580 livres. At Mr. Gaignat's in 1769, for 421 livres. At Mr. De Baisset's in 1777, for 510 livres. And at the Duke de la Valliere's sale in 1784, it brought 1274 livres.

———— 4to. Ferrariae, 1471. Liber eximiae raritatis. This lacks the book De Spectaculis, and is evidently taken from MSS. different from those used by Vindelin de Spira. Sold at the Pinellian sale for 20l. 10s.

———— 4to. Sine titulo, et sine ulla nota

A very old edition, different from that of Spira. The character similar to the Silius Italicus ex recens. Pomponii Læti, fol. Rom. 1471.

MARTIALIS Epigr. 4to. Sine ulla nota. Distinguished from the above by an Epistle of Pliny at the beginning, and a Life of Martial at the end.

———— fol. Swein. & Pannartz, 1473. A very rare edition.

———— a Domit. Calderino, fol. Rom. Joan. Gensberg, 1474. Dedicated to Lorenzo de Medicis.

———— 8vo. Venet. Ald. 1501. 2l. 2s. &
 1517. 1l. 3s. Several bibliographers cite an edition of 1510, and another of 1512, by Aldus, but they are both suppositions.—It is believed no such editions ever existed. A copy on vellum of 1501, sold at the Pinellian sale for 31l. 10s.

———— 8vo. absque loc. et Typogr. indicio,

Martialis Epigrammata Selecta, Lat. et Angl. a Guil. Hay, 12mo. Lond. 1755. 3s. The translation in general good, and the epigrammatic point of Martial well preserved.

Marcus Valerius Martialis de Bilis, (now called Bubiera, in the kingdom of Arragon in Spain) came from his native place to Rome in the twentieth year of his age. Here he met with such treatment as a satirical genius might expect in a large city:—applauded by some, and hated by others. He continued there thirty-five years under Galba, and the succeeding Emperors, who gave him particular marks of their esteem. Domitian made him a Tribune; and in return he deified the Emperor while he lived; and treated him as a monster after his death. When Trajan came to the throne, who was a professed enemy to all satirists, Martial left Rome and retired to his own city, where he died about A. D. 100.

The best character that can be given of his Epigrams, is that given by himself ; Sunt bona, sunt quædam mediocria, sunt mala plura.

They are good, bad, and indifferent : but the bad are most abundant.

MASCLEF Grammatica hebraica, 12mo. Paris. 1731, 2 vol. Best edition. This edition was published by Father de la Bletterie, priest of the oratory, in which all the objections brought against Masclef's new method are answered. Father Masclef rejected the Hebrew vowel points: and his new method of reading consisted simply in adding after each consonant the first vowel in its name. E. g. after ב beth, e; after ד daleth, a, and so of the rest. At the end of a word, the vowel belonging to the letter is omitted. By this means, though he rejected the vowels, and considered all the letters as consonants, yet he made a provision for a very intelligible system of Hebrew pronunciation.

Pauli ÆGINETÆ opera medica, Gr. fol. Venet. Ald. 1528. Edit. princ. Very rare. Several bibliographers have mentioned, and even circum-stantially described an Aldine edition of 1534, fol. but no such edition ever existed. What led to this mistake was this: the edition of 1528 has been sometimes bound up with ÆTH AMYDENI libri medicinales, Gr. fol. Venet. Ald. 1534. Those therefore who only inspected the title-page have fallen into the above error.

Pomponius Mela was born in the province of Bœtica, in Spain, and flourished under the Emperor Claudius. His work De Situ Orbis, is allowed to be written in a concise, perspicuous, and elegant manner; though some critics suppose it bears marks of the declension of pure latinity.

Phil. MELANCTHONIS opera omnia, a Casp. Peucero, fol. Witteberg. 1601, 4 vol. This edition by Melancthon's son-in-law, is the most ample and most correct of this great man's works.

Philip Melancthon, a most eminent divine and reformer, was born in the palitinate of the Rhine, 1497, and died at Wirtemberg in 1560. Both Catholics and Protestants agree in allowing him to have been one of the most meek, humble, modest, amiable, and learned men of his day. God in his Providence seems to have raised him up on purpose to assist Luther in reforming the church, and to moderate and direct that excess of zeal, which, without the influence of Melancthon, must have sometimes carried Luther to such lengths as would have been injurious to the reformation itself.

MENANDRI et Philemonis fragmenta, a Jo. Clerico, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Amst. 1709. Some copies are found with the date Amst. 1712, but the edition is the same.

The fragments of Menander were first published by Morel, in 1553, Greek, Paris. Both these poets flourished under Alexander the Great, about 330 years before Christ. Of 108 Comedies composed by Menander, only a few fragments remain. It is said that Terence translated the whole in Latin: if so, the translation has shared the same fate with the original.

The edition of Le Clerc, which is said to be full of blunders, from the editor's almost total ignorance of the laws of Greek quantity, was severely criticised by Dr. Bentley in his Emendationes in Menandri et Philemonis reliquias ex nuperæ editione Joannis Clerici, ubi multa Grotii et aliorum plurima vero Clerici errata castigantur, auctore Phileluthero Lipsiensi. These he sent over to Peter Burman, who soon after published them with a violent preface: Le Clerc having heard of the intended publication, and being told that Bentley was the author, wrote him various letters, the originals of which were purchased at Dr. Askew's sale, and afterwards published by Dr. Geddes. Vid. Matty's Review, Vol. ix. Article 5.

The publication of the Emendationes produced the following works :

1. "Phylargyrii Cantabrigiensis Emendationes in Menandri et Philemonis Reliquias ex nupera editione, Joannis Clerici. Amsterdam, 8vo. 1711."

This work was reviewed, and fresh criticisms added, in vol. 22. p. 202. of the Bibliothèque Choisie. Besides what it mentioned in the title-page, it contains some remarks of Salvini on Menander and Philemon.

2. "Insania Emendationum in Menandri reliquias nuper editarum Traject. ad Rhenum, auctore Phileleuthero Lipsiensi accedit responsio M. Lucilii Profuturi, ad Epistolam C. Veratii Philellensis, quæ exstat in Bibliothecæ Choiriæ parte ix. 8vo. Lug. Bat. 1710."

This work, which is not mentioned in any part of the controversy, is in the Museum library, it is written in execrable Latin, and the Greek does not seem to be better.

There was another Menander, a rhetorician ; see him in the Rhetores Græci Veteres, Gr. fol. Ven. Ald. 1508—9, 2 vol. & 1513, fol. 3 vol.

Franc. Mesginen MENINSKI Thesaurus Linguarum Orientalium Turcicæ, Arabicæ, Persicæ, &c. fol. Vien. Aust. 1680, 4 vol. The first volume begins with Elif and ends with dal. The second begins with dzal and ends with kaf. The third begins with lam, and besides the conclusion of the alphabet, has an appendix of 429 pages. Then follow, Linguarum orientalium Turcicæ, Arabicæ, Persicæ Institutiones, in seven parts, containing 216 columns, which is concluded with an index of Arabic triliteral verbs, and an appendix of emendations, in two pages. The fourth volume is entitled, Complementum Thesauri, seu Onomasticum Latino-Turcico, Arabico-Persicum, &c. Viennæ, Aust. 1687. This is concluded with an appendix of 189 columns ; and thus the work terminates. In some copies the Institutiones are bound separately, and thus the work appears in five volumes ; but by being bound as before noted, the volumes are then all of nearly an equal size. There is but one title-page in general to the whole work, but that which is here described has a distinct title in black and red to each of the four volumes.

This edition is extremely scarce, and previously to the publication of Mr. Richardson's Persian, Arabic, and English Dictionary, was extremely dear : as a good copy sold for fourscore, and sometimes 100 guineas ! One principal cause of its extraordinary price is its scarcity, as the greater part of the edition was destroyed by a bomb from the Turkish army who were then besieging Vienna, which fell upon the author's premises, and consumed the principal part of his work. The fourth volume, or Complementum, was entirely destroyed : and the indefatigable Meninski was obliged to compose this entirely anew ; and this is the reason why it did not appear till seven years after the other was completed. There are few sets of this work which do not bear evident proofs of the above mentioned fire—many parts are stained with the water used to quench the flames ; and in some volumes, especially the third, where the Grammatical Institutions are found, some leaves have been so damaged with the fire and the water, as to oblige them to be cut out, and others less damaged pasted in their place.

A new edition of this work, fol. 2 vol. Viennæ, Kurzhec, 1780—84, has lately made its appearance, with what improvements, if any, I have not learnt. The Turkish, Persian, and Arabic Grammars were republished in two volumes, quarto, Viennæ, 1756. Of the first edition of the Thesaurus it may be safely predicted, that as it ever must be a scarce book, it will never descend below its value. Indeed few, very few works of its kind can boast of more literary merit than the THESAURUS of Meninski, though a writer who owes to it all his excellencies, has called this in question.

Maria Sybilla Merian, was daughter of Matthew Merian mentioned above; she was born at Francfort in 1647, and died at Amsterdam in 1717, aged seventy years. She excelled most artists in painting the various tints of flowers:—butterflies, grasshoppers, and other insects she executed with unrivalled excellence. She spent two years in Surinam painting the insects and reptiles of that island, together with the plants, flowers, and fruits on which they feed. She composed several other works, which are all esteemed.

Minutius Felix was a Roman orator: when he lived is very uncertain. The earliest date allowed him is 170; the latest 220. Dr. Lardner after Baronius supposes he lived in 210, toward the close of the reign of Septimius Severus. His defence of the Christian religion is allowed to be an excellent one. It is in form of a dialogue between Cæcilius Natalis a heathen, and Octavius Januarius a christian; in which Minutius sits judge. Cæcilius first objects, and then Octavius answers. The issue is, the conviction of Cæcilius, and his conversion to christianity. This work of Minutius is a learned, ingenious, and eloquent performance.

MISSALE Mixtum secundum Regulam Beati Isidori dictum Mozarabes. Toleti, 1500.

This is the scarcest book in any collection. At the end of it are the following words, which deserve to be inserted here :

Ad Laudem Omnipotentis Dei, nec non Virginis Mariæ Matris ejus, Omnium Sanctorum Sanctorumq; expletum est Missale Mixtum secundum Regulam Beati Isidori dictum Mozarabes: Maxima cum Diligentia perlectum & emendatum, per Reverendum in utroq; Jure Doctorem Dominum Alfonsum Ortiz Canonicum Toletanum. Impressum in Regal. Civitate Toleti, Jussu Reverendissimi in Christo Patris Domini D. Francisci Ximenii, ejusdem Civitatis Archiepiscopi. Impensis Nobilis Melchioris Gorricii Novariensis, per Magistrum Petrum Hagembach, Alemanum, Anno Salutis nostræ 1500, Die 29<sup>o</sup> Mensis Januarii.

This is supposed to be the ancient Missal amended and purged by St. Isidore, archbishop of Sevil, and ordered by the council of Toledo to be used in all churches, every one of which before that time had a Missal peculiar to itself. The Moors afterwards committing great ravages in Spain, destroying the churches, and throwing every thing there, both civil and sacred, into confusion, all St. Isidore's Missals, excepting those in the city of Toledo, were lost. But those were preserved, even after the Moors had made themselves masters of that city ; since they left six of the churches there to the Christians, and granted them the free exercise of their religion. Alphonsus the Sixth, many ages afterwards, expelled the Moors from Toledo, and ordered the Roman Missal to be used in those churches, where St. Isidore's Missal had been in vogue, ever since the council abovementioned. But the people of Toledo insisting, that their Missal was drawn up by the most ancient bishops, revised and corrected by St. Isidore, proved to be the best by the great number of Saints who had followed it, and been preserved during the whole time of the Moorish government in Spain, he could not bring his project to bear without great difficulty. In short, the contest between the Roman and Toletan Missals came to that height, that according to the genius of the age, it was decided by a single combat, wherein the champion of the Toletan Missal proved victorious. But King Alphonsus, say some of the Spanish writers, not being satisfied with this, which he considered as the effect of chance only, ordered a fast to be proclaimed, and a great fire to be then made ; into which, after the king and people had prayed fervently to God for his assistance in this affair, both the Missals were thrown, but the Toletan only escaped the violence of the flames. This, continue the same authors, made such an impression upon the king, that he permitted the citizens of Toledo to use their own Missal, in those churches that had been granted the Christians by the Moors. However, the copies of this Missal grew afterwards so scarce, that Cardinal Ximenes found it extremely difficult to meet with one of them ; which induced him to order this impression, and to build a chapel, in which this service was chanted every day, as it had at first been by the ancient Christians. But notwithstanding this, the copies of the Toletan Missal were become so exceeding rare, that it was almost in as much danger of perishing in oblivion, as it was when committed to the press by Cardinal Ximenes, when Alexander Lesley published an edition in folio at Rome, in 1755, which sells for 1l. 1s.

Bernard Montfaucon was born in the castle of Sauloge in Languedoc, in 1655, and died at St. Germain des Prez in 1741, in the eighty-seventh year of his age. Even in this extreme old age he studied regularly eight hours each day! Father Montfaucon was a solidly pious, deeply learned, modest, and laborious man. His works are a sufficient monument of his piety and erudition.

Nemesius was a Christian philosopher, and bishop of Emesa in Phœnicia, about A. D. 370. In his curious treatise on the Nature of Man, he strongly combats the fatality of the Stoics, and the errors of the Manicheans; and maintains the notion of the soul's pre-existence. In the Oxford edition, considerable discoveries are attributed to him on the nature and use of the bile. Cneius Nævius was a famous poet of Campania, contemporary with Livius Andronicus. He is said to have represented the first comedy in Rome 235 years before the Christian æra: but see Livius ANDRONICUS. He composed also some Tragedies, a few fragments of which are found with Liv. Andronicus, and among the Poet. Trag. He gave the first specimen of a Heroic poem in Latin, in a description of the first Punic war, and the Iliad of Cyprus, mentioned by Cicero.

Sir Isaac Newton, who is far above any praise which the editor of this work can bestow, was born at Colesworth, in Lincolnshire, December 25, 1642. The little of this great man that was mortal, died in 1726. He was then in his eighty-fifth year. Of him a great poet has said:

Nature, and Nature's Laws, lay hid in night:

GOD said: Let NEWTON be—and there was Light.

———— 4to. Etonæ, 1610. With Gregory Nazianzen's Orations. There is hardly any Greek author, says Dr. Harwood, that more requires a correct and elaborate edition than Nonnus, whose Dionysiaca are a wonderful miscellany of heathen mythology and erudition.

Nonnus flourished about A. D. 500.

NONNI paraphrasis in Joannem, Gr. 4to. Ven. Ald. Sine anno. In the last leaf of Gregor. Nazianzen. Carmina, printed by Aldus in 1504, he says, that he had printed this work three years before, which evidently proves that it was printed in 1501. Aldus had intended to translate it into Latin, and to publish the translation with the Latin text; but this he tells us he could not get time to perform: hence the Nonnus remained imperfect, never having either title or preface printed. It is one of the scarcest of the Aldine editions; no care ever having been taken of it, because it was considered an imperfect work.

From the many editions through which this work has passed, the public opinion of its worth may be fairly estimated.

Nonnus was a native of Panopolis, in Egypt, and flourished some time in the fifth century. His paraphrase of St. John's Gospel, in Greek hexameter verse, is all that remains of his works, He has some important various readings; and omits the history of the woman taken in adultery. John. Chap. viii. v. 1. &c. His various readings have been carefully selected by Mill, Bengel, Wetstein, and Griesbach.

Novatian, or more properly Novatus, was a Presbyter of the church of Rome, and flourished about A. D. 251. He was founder of what is termed the Novatian sect, or heresy. See a large NUMISMATA aurea Imperatorum Romanorum e Cimelio Regis Christianissimi, delineata et æri incisa a comite de Caylus, 4to. Par. 1777. A very rare though modern book. It has no letter-press explanation; but what must enhance the value, it never was published for sale, and but a few copies worked off. Twelve only on large paper. The Abbé Barthelemy had a considerable share in producing it. It is said the plates were destroyed after the number designed was printed. “Il a fait casser ou biffer les planches de cuivre.” The work contains upwards of 2400 medals upon sixty-eight plates, and sold in a sale at Paris in 1780, for 289 livres. Julius Obsequens was a writer of an uncertain age. Some suppose he flourished in the time of Trajan, others under the empire of Honorius, about 390 years before our Lord. His work De Prodigis is little else than a catalogue of those which T. Livius has inserted in his history. Both writers seem equally credulous.

Guil. Caoursin OBSIDIONIS Urbis Rhodiæ Descriptio, Ulm. per Joannem Reger, 1496.

This book is on many accounts very remarkable. The author is stiled Vicecancellarius Rhodi, and was probably an eye-witness of what he relates. The first part contains the narrative of the siege of Rhodes, by Mahomet the Great, and a congratulatory oration to the Rhodians, on the death of Mahomet. He then proceeds to the transactions with his successor, Bajazet the Second, and gives a very minute account of the capture of his brother Zizimi, who was presented to the Pope, and died at Rome. The character is Gothic, but neat and elegant; it is full of cuts, which are some of the oldest extant, and in themselves very remarkable. It is observable, that the capitals at the beginning of each section are not illuminated with a pencil, but like these now used cut with ornaments and circumvolutions in metal, of which this book, perhaps, affords the first example. There is likewise some account of the translation of a relique. The subjects of some of the cuts deserve to be mentioned. The first exhibits the author presenting his book to the grand master; the second, the approach of the Turkish fleet; the third, a breach in the mole and tower of St. Nicolas, and battle by sea and land; the fourth, the defence of the tower of St. Nicolas, &c. The cuts are thirty-four, each a page. Harleian Catalogue.

Mr. Morcelli has proved that this, as well as the Elogia Ducum, are the genuine works of Augustus. Suetonius mentions several other works both in prose and verse written by Augustus: but they are all lost.

Caius Julius Caesar Octavianus Augustus, was son of Octavius, an Ædile of the people, and Accia, daughter of Julia, sister to Julius Caesar. He was born September 23d. sixty-three years before Christ, and died August 19, A. D. 14. He was a man of considerable learning, and the patron of learned men. The genius of Latin poetry attained its acmè of splendor under this prince: Virgil, Horace, Ovid, Propertius, &c. flourished in his reign. His time was the golden age of poetry and polite literature. Since his time, many a Virgil and Horace have been lost to the republic of letters for lack of an Augustus and a Mæcenas.

Oppian, the Greek poet, was a native of Anazarba, a city of Cilicia, and flourished in the reign of the Emperor Caracalla, about A. D. 200. This prince was so highly delighted with Oppian's Cynogeticon, that he gave him a golden crown for each line: hence it is said they were called Oppian's Golden Verses. He died of the plague in the thirtieth year of his age.

OPPIUS. See HIRTIUS.

OPTATIANUS Porphyrius Panegyricus Constantin. August. dict. a P. Velsero, fol. Aug. Vindel. 1595.

This author flourished about A. D. 330. He wrote in praise of the Emperor Constantine, and of the mysteries of the Christian religion. He was probably the inventor of what are called Acrostich verses. A species of writing, which, even in the hands of the best poets, produces much labour, and no elegance.

St. OPTATI Milevitani Episcopi opera omnia, ex edit. Lud. El. Dupin, fol. Par. 1679 & 1700, & cum not. var. fol. Antv. 1702. A good edition, vastly preferable to that of Gabriel Aubespine, fol. Paris. 1631, and to that also of Le Prieur, Paris. 1679. This work was also published 8vo. London, 1631, with the works of Meric Casaubon.

Optatus was bishop of Mileva, a city of Numidia in Africa, and flourished under Valentinian and Valens, about A. D. 368. Of his works only seven books concerning the schism of the Donatists remain; they were written against Parmenian, a bishop of that sect. St. Augustin, Jerom, and Fulgentius, speak highly of this author.

S. ORIGENIS opera, a Car. de la Rue Monach. S. Mauri, Gr. et Lat. fol. Paris. 1733—39, 4 vol. This very excellent edition of the learned Benedictines is executed with great accuracy and judgment. ORIGENIS Adamantii opera omnia, ad Editionem Parisiensem Caroli de la Rue recusa, Gr. et Lat. a Franc. Oberthur, 8vo. Wirceburgi, 1780, & ann. seqq. vol. 1—9. This is a very neat edition, and forms a part of the Sanctorum Patrum Græcorum Opera Polemica, begun by Oberthur at Wurceburg in 1777.

Origen was born at Alexandria in the 185th. year of our Lord, and was surnamed Adamantinus, from his indefatigable assiduity in labour. His Hexapla Montfaucon supposes must of itself have made fifty large folio volumes.

It is said that he learned the whole of the sacred writings by heart, and carried on his works with so much ease, that he dictated to seven or eight persons at once. He was very fond of the Platonic philosophy, and introduced it frequently into his writings on the Christian religion. He had a very penetrating and vigorous imagination, and indulged it in allegorical interpretations of scripture much to his own discredit, and to that also of the sacred writings. He is the first ancient writer who maintained the opinion of the restitution of all things. Several other unsound tenets are attributed to him; but these accusations should be received with great caution, because they appear to have originated with his enemies, and particularly Demetrius, bishop of Alexandria, who excessively envied his great reputation, and endeavoured to blacken his character by every means in his power. But this has ever been the fate of all those who endeavour by genius and application to rise above the level of their circumstances; for this is a crime which the illiterate can never pardon. This very great and very good man died at Tyre, A. D. 254, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. See Dr. Lardner's account of him, Works, vol. ii. p. 458. See also HEXAPLA.

Paul Orosius was a priest of Taragon, in Catalognia. In 414 he went to Hippo, and studied a year under St. Augustin. In 415 he went to Jerusalem to consult St. Jerom concerning the origin of the soul. On his return he wrote by St. Augustin's advice, his history in seven books, which extends from the creation to A. D. 416. It is more a dogmatical than historical work, full of inaccuracies and unfounded popular reports ; the chief design of which is to describe the calamities which afflicted men (the Roman people chiefly) for their worship of false gods.

1489. Some authors have supposed this edition done at Florence, others at Parma, misled probably by the following subscripton: Impensa Lucae Antonii Florentini a Matthæo Capcasa Parmense accuratissimæ impressa. But there is no positive evidence that Matthew Capcasa (de Codeca) printed any thing this year either at Florence or Parma; nor can I find that he ever printed at either of those places: but he certainly carried on the printing business at Venice in 1482—85—88—89—90—91—92—93—94 & 1495.

Quæ hoc in libello continentur, Fastorum lib. vi. De Tristibus lib. v. De Ponto lib. iii. 8vo. At the end of the Fasti on a blank leaf, Venet. in Aldi Romani Academica, mense Januario, 1502. At the end of the tract De Ponto, Venet. in Acad. Aldi mense Febr. 1503. These three volumes are generally quoted together as making a complete set; though it does not appear that Aldus designed they should always be connected. This edition is very rare, and especially that volume which contains the books De Arte amandi—De Remedio Amoris, as it appears they were more frequently read by youth, and perhaps often destroyed by scrupulous persons. See RENOUARD.

Pub. OVIDII Nasonis opera, ex recens. Andr. Naugerii, 8vo. Venet. Ald. 1515—16, 3 vol. Published nearly as the preceding. This edition is more correct in the text than the former, being carefully revised by Andrew Navagero, who is author of the notes prefixed to the volume which contains the Metamorphosis. Though the edition of 1502 is said by some Bibliographers to be ex recens. Andr. Naugerii, yet it does not appear that he had any hand in preparing that edition, as he is no where mentioned in it. The mistake probably arose from the circumstance of some volume of the edition of 1516, being united to that of 1502.

Pub. OVIDII Nas. opera, ab Herc. Ciofano, 8vo. Ven. Ald. 1578. Cited in the Bibliotheca Portatile: but there was no edition of Ovid printed this year at the Aldine press. Probably it is a mistake for Herculis Ciofani in P. Ovidii N. Metamorph. ex xvii. antiquis libris, Observationes, &c. 8vo. Venet. 1575. Or for *Heroidum Epistolæ, P. This seems to be the same work mentioned in the ninth article in the Opera; see before. But the edition I now cite contains only the fifteen books of the Metamorphosis. It commences with a dedication from Bonus Accursius magnifico equiti aurato et sapientissimo, ac primo ducali Secretarie Ciccho Simonetæ. Then follows the life of Ovid dedicated to the same. Next follows a table of all the Fables in each book. Then comes the body of the work, and prefixed to each fable an argument, detailing its contents. After the last line of the fifteenth book, F. I. N. I. S. thus pointed, stands alone. Then follows this subscription in capitals.

CONSOLATIO ad LIVIAM, fol. Ven. 1472. With Ausonius.

Publius Obidius Naso was born at Sulmo, of an Equestrian family, about forty-three years before the Christian æra. His father designed him for the bar, and sent him to Rome where he studied rhetoric under Aurelius Fuscus. But being born a poet, the father's expectations were disappointed, for he could not write but in verse, as himself informs us: Et quod tentabam scribere versus erat. He was at first a favourite of Augustus, and intimately acquainted with Virgil, Propertius, Tibullus, and Horace. But the favour of the Emperor did not continue long, for having by some means or other (perfectly unknown) displeased Augustus, he banished him in the fiftieth year of his age to Tomis, a city on the Pontus Euxinus, near the mouth of the Danube, where he died principally through vexation, aided by the dampness of the place, and the coldness of the climate, in the seventh or eighth year of his banishment. Ovid was thrice married—his two first wives he divorced; the third, it is supposed, retained his affection. He was certainly a very fine poet, his works demonstrate this: but he was undoubtedly an immoral man. Scarcely any of his works can be read by youth without prejudice to their innocence. And in his books De Arte Amandi, &c. the poison of impurity is prepared with all possible art and elegance. It may be truly said, that the excellence of his poetry can never compensate for the indelicacy of his expressions, and the immorality of his sentiments.

OUPNEK'HAT, i. e. Secretum tegendum continens antiquam et arcanam, seu Theologicam et Philosophicam doctrinam, è quatuor sacris Indorum libris RAK Beid, DJEDJR Beid, SAM Beid, ATHERBAN Beid excerptam. ad verbum e Persico idiomate in latinum conversum; Dissertationibus et Annotationibus difficiliora explanantibus, illustratum. Studio et opera Anquetil Du Perron, Indicopleustæ, 4to. tom. i. Argent. 1801. As this work contains an abstract of the theology and philosophy of the ancient Hindoos, taken from their sacred books, it cannot fail being acceptable to the divine, the scholar, the antiquarian, and the critic. The translator, Anquetil du Perron; is already well known in the republic of letters, by his translation of the Zend Avesta, a work attributed to Zoroaster. See ZEND. The first volume only of the Oupnekhat is published ; and there is some reason to fear lest the venerable translator, who is now in his seventy-fourth year, should not be able to accomplish his important undertaking. The work is beautifully printed by the Levraults, at Strasbourg ; and is a valuable acquisition to every student in Persian literature.

Guillelmi OUTRAMI de Sacrificiis libri duo, 4to. Lond. 1677. A work of considerable worth.

Joan. OWEN Cambro-Britanni, Epigrammata, 16mo. L. Bat. Elzev. 1647. Often reprinted.

John Owen, the author of these epigrams, was born in Caernarvonshire. He was fellow of New College, Oxford, and took the degree of bachelor of the civil law in 1590. He died in poverty in 1623, and a monument in Westminster Abby was erected to his memory ! While alive he was permitted to starve : after death he was honoured ! Is it not strange that people cannot find out a man's worth, till he is incapable of receiving the recompence due to his merit ? His book though highly prized abroad, was put in the Index Expurgatorius by the church of Rome for the following epigram :

An Petrus fuerit Romæ, sub iudice lis est.

Simonem Romæ nemo fuisse negat.

Saint Peter ruled in Rome, they say.—

But this may be disputed.

That Simon reign'd there many a day

Can never be confuted.

The real name of the author of this very excellent work was Petrus Angelus Manzolius, he was probably an Italian, and flourished about the middle of the sixteenth century. His poem which he has termed the Zodiac of human Life, he divided into twelve parts, each being inscribed with the name of one of the twelve signs, the grand object of which is, to teach men the road to present and eternal happiness. The many sarcasms contained in this work against the Pope, the cardinals; and the church of Rome; caused the Catholics to place it in the first rank of heretical books in the Index Expurgatorius. Had the author lived long enough he would have been burnt alive; for the Catholics took up his body from the grave, and to punish the author for what he had written against them, reduced it to ashes. The poem is really a fine one; and deserves to be more generally known.

———— De Vita Chrysostomi ab Emerico Pigotio, Gr. et Lat 4to. Par. 1680. Edit. opt.

Palladius was born at Cappadocia, and was at first a hermit of Nitria in 388, and became bishop of Helenopolis, in Bythinia, in 401. He was an intimate friend of St. Chrysostom, and suffered much persecution in his behalf. His Lausiaca History, or Lives of the Hermits, was written at the request of Lausus, governor of Cappadocia, from whom it had its name. The piece De Vita Chrysostomi, has been attributed to another Palladius, an eastern Greek bishop, about the beginning of the fifth century.

Caius Velleius Paterculus was of an illustrious family, originally of Naples; he was a military tribune, and afterwards prætor in the year in which Augustus died. He followed Tiberius in all his expeditions, and was a particular friend of Sejanus his favourite, in whose ruin it is supposed he was involved, about A. D. 31. Only a small part of his history remains, and that almost incurably corrupted, as only one MS. of the work is extant; so that like Hesychius it must continue imperfect and incorrect till another MS. be discovered, if such be in existence. Paterculus is a beautiful writer; and is inimitable in his characters, which he describes in the most accurate manner, in a few words. He is however, justly blamed for praising Tiberius and Sejanus, and depreciating others whose characters were as pure as those of the above were profligate. Paterculus mentions Virgil, Sallust, Livy, Tibullus, and Ovid, as his contemporaries.

PERS. Luc. Aul. Flac. SATYR. cum versione Gallica et figuris, 8vo. Bern. 1769. For various other editions, see JUVENAL.

Aulus Persius Flaccus was born at Volterra, in Tuscany (according to the general opinion), about thirty-four years after our Lord. He studied at Rome under the grammarian Palæmon, the retorician Virginius, and the stoic philosopher Cornutus. Nero pretended to be a poet; and Persius, who detested him and his pretensions, abused him without mercy. The better to ridicule him, it is said the poet often introduced some of the Emperor's verses in his Satires. The following Sat. lib. i. v. 99—102. are supposed to be Nero's.

*“ Torva Mimalloneis implêrunt cornua bombis,
Et raptum vitulo caput ablatura superbo
Bssuris, et lyncem Mænas flexura corymbis, Evion ingeminat : reparabilis adsonat Echo.”
Hæc herent, si testiculi vena ulla paterni Viveret in nobis ?*

*“ Their crooked horns the Mimallonean crew,
With blasts inspired ; and Bassaris who slew
The scornful calf, with sword advanc'd on high,
Made from his neck his haughty head to fly.
And Mænas, when with ivy bridles bound,
She led the spotted Lynx, then Evion rung around ;
Evion from woods and floods repairing Echo's sound.”
Could such rude lines a Roman mouth become,
Were any manly greatness left in Rome ?     Dryd.*

In reference to the same tyrant, it is said he first wrote, line 121, thus: Auriculas Asini Midas habet. But his friend Cornutus fearing the sarcasm might cost the poet his life, got him to insert quis non habet? and thus leave out the pointed allusion. But see Bayle's Criticisms on these suppositions.

There are only six satires of this poet remaining, and they are remarkably obscure; but this is not the fault of the poet. His satires were not intended for mankind at large—they were pointed against persons and vices which were then reigning: and as he is continually alluding to customs and facts which have perished with that age, the allusions are necessarily obscure. Persius had a delicate constitution, and died in the twenty-eighth or thirtieth year of his age. He left his library, and a large sum of money, to his friend and preceptor Cornutus. But the generous philosopher divided the money among the poet's sisters; and kept only the books. Many philosophers of the present day would have kept both.

PERVIGILIUM Veneris, sive Carmen de veri, a Petro Scriverio cum notis Pithoei et Salmasii, 8vo. L. Bat 1638. Annexed to a work intitled Baudii amores, and another, entitled, Florida, versus trochaici Flori Poetæ de Qualitate vitæ. Of this poet Florus, we know nothing but the name.

———— ab Andr. Rivinio, 4to. Lips. 1645.

———— cum not. var. 8vo. Hag. Comit. 1712.

Annexed to the Cupido Cruci adfixus of Ausonius.
A fine edition.

Gr. et Lat. fol. Par. 1630. A valuable work.

————— De Doctrina Temporum, fol. Paris.
1627, 2 vol. These three volumes are seldom sold separately.

————— Rationarium Temporum, a Lenglet
du Fresnoy, 12mo. Par. 1703.

————— a Joanne Conrad. Rungio, 8vo. Lugd.
1710, 2 vol. This work is an abridgement of the Doctrina Temporum; and this last edition is allowed to be the best.

————— Dogmata Theologica, fol. Par. 1644 & 1650, 5 vol. Reprinted at Florence, 1722, and at Amsterdam, fol. 1763, 3 vol. A work in considerable esteem, both among Catholics and Protestants.

Dionysius Petavius (Dennis Petau) was born at Orleans in 1583. In 1605 he entered among the Jesuits in their college at Paris, where he applied himself intensely to the study of literature in general, but especially to chronology, in which he acquired a reputation superior to that of most of the literati in Europe. Philip IV. King of Spain requested him from the Father General of the order, to take a professor's chair in the imperial college of Madrid: but Father Petau being afflicted with a bilious complaint, and greatly tortured with the stone, it was judged improper to remove him from his beloved cell. Had Father Petau enjoyed a good state of health, said Niceron, he would have been lost both to literature and France. For what could he have done in a country where there are no books, or only such as a man of learning should not read? And where no artists could be got who could compose two words of Latin; and where the customs of the country required every work to be submitted to the censure of persons who could not understand it, and who, on this very account, were interested to suppress it?" This very learned man, and useful writer, died in his cell in the college of Clermont, December 11, 1652, in the sixty-ninth year of his age.

Petri PETITI Dissertatio de Amazonibus, cum fig. æn. 8vo. Amst. 1686. This is an attempt to prove, from medals and monuments, that such a race of warlike Ladies have existed.

Francis Petrarch, the father of Italian poetry, was born at Arrezzo, July 20, 1304. His father sent him to study law at Montpellier and Bologna; but his taste for poetry rendered jurisprudence insipid, useless, and insupportable to him. He received letters, it is said, in the same day, from the Senate of Rome, the University of Paris, and the King of Naples, inviting him in the most flattering manner to come and receive the poetic crown. He preferred Rome, and having arrived there, was crowned with a crown of Laurel with a world of ceremony, on Easter-day, 1341. After the ceremony was ended he repaired to St. Peter's church, and having devoutly returned thanks to God for the honour he had received, he deposited his crown among the holy offerings, to be hung up in the temple as a testimony of his gratitude to the Divine Being. This very eminent poet was found dead in his study, his head leaning on an open book, July 18, 1374, in the seventieth year of his age. I say nothing of his passion for the famous Laura, for though it has given birth to 318 fine sonnets, and 88 songs, it was nevertheless disgraceful both to the man and the poet, as she was the lawful wife of another person, Hugo de Sade, Lord of Saumane. Petrarch's Epitaph, said to have been made by himself, is as follows :

Inveni requiem : Spes et Fortuna, valete !

Nil mihi vobiscum est ; ludite nunc alios.

Of Petronius Arbiter little certain is known. He is generally supposed to have lived under Nero, and to have been one of the principal favourites of that bad man: though others place him under the Antonini. His Banquet of Trimalcion is a vile piece, and should never have seen the sun. Tiraboschi very reasonably wonders that so many learned men have taken so much pains to illustrate a writer who is so full of meanness and obscenity. Learned men however, are greatly divided concerning the merit of this writer.—It is said, that being accused to Nero of a conspiracy against his life, he was put to death by having his veins cut.

Peter Chrysologus was archbishop of Ravenna, about A. D. 432, and died in 458. There is nothing in his writings (though very well for the age) which justly entitle him to the epithet Chrysologus, the man with golden words, which was given him by Felix, bishop of Ravenna, 250 years after his death.

Isaac La Peyrere was born at Bourdeaux in 1594, and died at Paris in 1676. Besides the above fantastic work, he is author of a History of Greenland, 8vo. 1647. In relation to this work, he was one day asked, Why there were so many Sorcerers in the northern countries? To which he replied: “It is because the goods of these pretended magicians are confiscated to the use of their judges as soon as they are capitally convicted.”

PFISTER (Albertus). A book printed at Bamberg in 1462, by the above, was discovered and described in 1792, by Matthias Jacob Adam Steiner. It consists of three parts: the first is an Allegory on Death—the second, The History of Joseph, Daniel, Judith, and Esther—and the third, The Biblia Pauperum. All the pieces are in German: and the different parts adorned with rude wood-cuts: the character is Missal, or Gothic, the form small folio, and it contains 101 leaves. The old square point is alone used in the work. It has neither folios, catchwords, nor signatures. Previous to the discovery of this work, it was supposed that the press had not been established at Bamberg before 1481, when the Missale Divinum was printed by John Sensenschmidt. PEIGNOT in his Dictionnaire raisonné de Bibliologie, vol. i. p. 387, thinks that this book proves that the press was then established at Bamberg. Others think it was the work of an itinerant printer. Query, Were there any itinerant printers in that age? Of this work Panzer, Annales, &c. vol. i. p. 142, gives his opinion in the following words: Opuscula quæ typis mandavit typographus hic, ad litteraturam Teutonicam pertinent. Inte- rim PFISTERUM hunc Bambergæ fixam habuisse sedem, vix crediderim. Videntur potius hi libri teutonici, monumenta transeuntis typographi esse. The book which is perhaps unique, is now in the National Library at Paris.

Phædrus was a native of Thrace, and at first a slave of Augustus, but afterwards freed by that Emperor. He wrote under Tiberius, and is said to have been greatly persecuted by Sejanus, that bad minister of a barbarous prince, because he imagined the elogiums which the poet made on virtue, were directed against his vices.

His five books of fables, written in Iambic verse, are justly admired for their wit and good sense, expressed in very pure and elegant language. The work of this elegant poet was buried in obscurity till A. D. 1595 or 96, when it was discovered in the library of St. Remi, at Rheims, by Francis Pithou, who gave the first edition of it. It is said, that not more than two MSS. of Phædrus are extant; both imperfect, and both transcribed from the same copy with such carelessness, that the number of faults seems to exceed the number of verses in the work. It is the custom in some schools to use Phædrus in some of the lower forms, but this is certainly injudicious. “There are few Latin Classics” says Dr. Harwood, “that have more difficult passages than Phædrus.”

Phalaris was a tyrant of Agrigentum in Sicily, who signalized himself by his cruelties. Having seized on Agrigentum, he invented a variety of methods to torture the citizens. Perillus, a famous artist, entered fully into the views of the savage tyrant, and formed a brazen bull, in which the objects of his cruelty were to be inclosed, and then a fire lighted under, by which they were to be roasted to death. This horrible machine was so contrived that the cries of the tormented resounded from it like the bellowing of an ox. When the artist had completed his work, he came to the tyrant for his reward, who ordered him to be roasted to death in the bull he had formed. Thus the contriver of the mischief was the first who suffered by it. About the 561st. year before Christ, the Agrigentines revolted, and roasted the tyrant in the same machine. The letters which are extant under this tyrant's name, are now generally allowed to be spurious. On this subject a controversy took place between the Honourable Charles Boyle, afterwards Earl of Orrery, and Dr. Richard Bentley, which was managed on one side with the keenest wit and satire, clothed in elegant and captivating language; and on the other with a profusion of solid and excellent learning, and deep critical sagacity. Such was the humour of the day, that the advantage was adjudged to Mr. Boyle, but after ages have been wiser; the business has been rejudged, and Dr. Bentley has now both cause and costs. Garth, Swift, and Pope, all disgraced themselves by taking the popular side of this debate.

PHARMACOPŒA Persica ex Idiomate Persica in Latinum conversa ab Angelo a S. Josepho (De la Brosse), 8vo. Lut. Paris. 1681.

Dr. Hyde has handled the author of this work very severely, in a piece entitled, Castigatio in Angelum a Sancto Joseph; at the end of volume first of the Syntagma Dissertationum, published at Oxford, 1767, 2 vol. 4to. He asserts, that Angelo a St. Joseph was not the translator of the Pharmacopœa Persica, but that it had been done long before by a Mr. P. Matthews, who had been medical tutor to the said Angelo. He goes on to prove that Father Angelo was grossly ignorant of the true Persian orthography, and had no critical knowledge of the Persian language—he then vindicates the editors of the London Polyglott from Angelo's aspersions, and threatens him with heavier chastisement if he dares to reply.

Philo was a Jew of Alexandria, of an illustrious and sacerdotal family. He was chief of the deputation sent from the Jews to Caius Caligula against Appion, about A. D. 40 or 42. But that Emperor, who though worse than a man, desired to be reputed a god, being irritated against the Jews, because they refused to place his image in the synagogues, &c. refused to hear him. Learned men are greatly divided on the subject of Philo's religion; many think he was a Jew, others a Christian, and others a Heathen—indeed there seems a considerable mixture of all these in his writings. He had so studied Plato, and imitated his manner, that it became an ancient proverb, Aut PLATO Philonizat, aut PHILO Platonizat. His writings are of considerable service in discovering the meaning of several passages in the New Testament. It is likely that those expressions in Philo's works, which savour so much of idolatry, have been introduced by some Pagan copyist; and should not be laid to the charge of this illustrious author.

PHILO BIBLIUS, a Greek grammarian, flourished under the Emperor Adrian. He translated the Phœnician history of Sanchoniatho into Greek; but of this work only a few fragments remain. Philo of Byzantium, flourished according to some 150, according to others, 300 years before the Christian æra. The piece De Septem orbis Spectaculis, attributed to him, is supposed by some learned men to be spurious.

Philostorgius was an Ecclesiastical historian of particularly Athanasius. There are notwithstand-

———— De Vita Apollonii libri viii. Gr. Iidem libri latini interprete Rinucino. Eusebius contra Hieroclem qui Tyaneum Christo conferre conatus fuerit, Gr. Idem latinus Interprete Zenobio Acciolo, fol. At the end of the Greek text, Venet. apud Aldum mense Martio, 1501. At the commencement of the Latin, there is a Preface of Aldus to Zenobio, dated May, 1504, and at the end of the Latin, Venet. in ædib. Aldi mense Februario, 1502. The reason why this volume bears three different dates, appears from the Preface to Zenobio to be this: Aldus supposing the work of Philostratus to be of considerable importance, began to print it before he had seriously examined its merit: but he soon discovered the work to be of no worth: Sperabam in libris Philostrati, says he, me quam plurima et digna scitu, et præclara lecturum: sed longe aliter certe evenit. Disgusted with it, he seems to have suspended the impression for some time: for he adds, Nihil enim unquam memini me legere deterius, lectuque minus dignum. Nam non modo fabulosa omnia, et anicularum narrationibus persimilia visa sunt; sed insulsa quoque et perinepta. At last it appears he came to the determination to complete and publish it, for which he gives the following reason: quid facerem? desistere ab incœptis turpe existimabam. These extracts from the preface, explain, as Mr. Renouard observes, the three different dates in this volume, which have caused some Bibliographers to note it as three distinct editions. Sold at the Pinellian sale for 3l. 18s.

Philostratus was a famous sophist, born either at Lemnos or at Athens. He at first taught rhetoric at Athens, and afterwards coming to Rome, he was employed by Julia, wife to the Emperor Septimus Severus, to arrange some memoirs which she had collected relative to the life of the famous impostor Apollonius Tyaneus, a proper character of which work is given by the judicious Aldus in the preceding extracts. Philostratus flourished about 200 years after Christ. The Lives of the Sophists mentioned above, is attributed to another of the same name, nephew to the preceding, who flourished under Macrinus and Heliogabulus.

Phlegon was a freedman of the Emperor Adrian, and was born at Tralles, in Lydia. He flourished about A. D. 138. There is a passage in his Olympiads that is supposed to refer to the darkness which took place at the crucifixion of our Lord; concerning which the reader may consult Dr. Lardner, WORKS, vol. vii. p. 370, &c.

Phocylides was a Greek poet and philosopher of Miletum, in Ionia, who flourished about 540 years before Christ. The work above, attributed to him is spurious, and seems to have been composed in the time of Adrian or Trajan. The author is supposed to have been a Christian, and probably the same who forged the Sibelline verses. The poem of Phocylides is likewise found in Winterton's Collection of the minor Greek Poets, 8vo. Cant. 1633, 1652, 1661, 1671, 1677, 1684, 1700, & Lond. 8vo. 1712 & 1739.

Photius was Patriarch of Constantinople in 857. The Emperor Basilus, the Macedonian, deposed him in 868, and put Ignatius in his place. Pope Nicolas had influence enough to call the eighth Œcumenic Council at Constantinople, and anathematized Photius and all his adherents. The expelled Patriarch found means to get into the good graces of the Emperor, who, on the death of Ignatius, replaced him in the Patriarchate in 877. Being falsely accused of a conspiracy against Leo, the philosopher, successor to Basilius, he was banished in 886, and died soon after. Under him began that famous schism between the Greek and Roman church, which subsists to this day.

Photius was the most learned and accomplished scholar of his time. His Bibliotheca is one of the most precious remains of antiquity : in it are extracts from 280 authors, the most of whom are since lost, with critical examinations which evince a fine taste and correct judgment.

His Nomocanon is a collection which concludes, under fourteen titles, all the Canons acknowledged in the church from the times of the Apostles, till the seventh Œcumenic Council.

It is said there are several tracts of this great author in ms. ; will not some scholar oblige the learned world with an edition of them ?

Phrynicius was a Greek orator, a native of Bythinia, and flourished under Marcus Aurelius and Commodus. The work above mentioned is a sort abridgement of a dictionary which he had composed, divided into thirty-six books, but this work is lost. He must not be confounded with another of the same name, a tragic poet, and disciple of Thespis, who was the first who brought women on the stage. This Phrynicus flourished about 512 years before the Christian æra. There was also a comic poet of the same name, who flourished about a century later.

John Francis Pic, Count of Mirandola, was born in 1463. He had a prodigious memory, and strange things are recounted of it. When he was little more than a child, after hearing two pages read over thrice, he could repeat them word for word either in a direct or retrograde order! It is said, that when he was only eighteen years of age, he understood twenty-two different languages perfectly! He at last gave up his estates and shut himself up in one of his castles, that he might devote himself entirely to study: in this voluntary imprisonment he died in 1494, aged thirty-one years.

Pindar, the prince of Lyric Poets, was born at Thebes, in Boetia, about 500 years before Christ. It is said he learned the art of versification from the famous Grecian poetess Myrtis; and that he died in the theatre about 436 years before the Christian æra. He had composed a great number of poems, but only his Olympian, Nemean, Pythian, and Isthmian odes remain: so called, because they celebrate the praises of those who, in his time, won the prizes at those four solemn games of the Greeks. Pindar was richly endowed with that impetuosity of genius—those violent transports—and that divine impulse which characterizes the genuine lyric poet. The vehemence of his figures, says Bruyset, the boldness of his images—the vivacity of his expressions—his striking metaphors—the harmony of his numerous turns—and the majestic precipitation of his style, all concur to constitute Pindar the greatest lyric poet that ever existed. Yet he possessed as much softness as enthusiasm; and the graceful is as natural to him as the energetic, witness that beautiful description which he gives of the Elysian fields in his second Olympic Ode, addressed to Theron, King of Agrigentum.

Pseudo-PINDARI Thebani Bellum Trojanum, a Laurentio Abstemio, 4to. sine ulla nota, acced. Maphæi Vegii et Astianax, Epigrammata quædam. Supposed to have been printed at Florence, and to have been one of the first fruits of the typographic art in that city.

Plato, son of Ariston, and founder of the academic sect, was born at Athens about 492 years before Christ. He was at first called Aristocles, but his gymnastic preceptor gave him the name of Plato, because of his broad and square shoulders. When about twenty years of age he attached himself entirely to Socrates, who gave him the appellation of the Academic Swan. After the death of Socrates, he withdrew to the house of Euclid, at Megara, and afterwards travelled into Egypt, that he might converse with the priests and illustrious men of that country. This great man died at Athens in the 348th. year before Christ, and the eighty-first of his age. All Plato's writings, his Epistles excepted, are in the form of Dialogues.

Plato was a very wonderful man: he had a vastly comprehensive mind, and a most delightful and copious eloquence. He had a clearer knowledge of the Divine Nature, and of truth in general, than any of the heathen philosophers. His writings were the means by which many of the ancient fathers were prepared to receive the truth of the gospel. That divine wisdom which delights in producing its works in the most admirable graduated order, connecting every subsequent with the preceding parts, has made Plato between Heathenism and Christianity, what the Polypus is between Plants and Animals, the Bat between Quadrupeds and Fowls, and the Ouran Outang between Quadrupeds and Man. Many indeed suppose that this philosopher had read the books of Moses, and received much information in divine matters from the Jewish priests; but there is no direct evidence concerning these points.

———— Comædiæ xx. Georgio Alexandrino Emendatore opera et Impendio Joannis de Colonia Agrippinensi atque Vindelini de Spira, fol. Venet. 1473.

Georgius Merula, in his ingenious epistle to Giacomo Zeno, bishop of Padua, asserts this to be the first edition of Plautus, and compares the completion of it to the labours of Hercules. It is certain the editor deserves the highest encomiums for dividing the text of Plautus into verses; since Terence's Comedies were long published without any regard to the metre. For a further account of this edition, recourse may be had to the above-mentioned epistle, which merits the perusal and attention of the curious.

This very ancient edition of Plautus is rendered valuable by the learned emendations and commentary of Bernardus Saracenus, a Venetian of great erudition. It was printed by Simon of Pavia, surnamed Bivilaqua, who finished it in September, 1499.

PLAUTI Comædiæ cum Correction. Geo. Merula Politiani & Beroaldi, fol. Edit. Antiq. sine loco aut Anno.

This impression of Plautus is a very accurate one; which must be attributed to the uncommon care and diligence of Sebastian Ducus and George Galbiatus, who made great additions to the MSS. of Merula and Politian, which they very carefully collated. Many things likewise, for the improvement and embellishment of this edition, they extracted from Varro, Festus, Nonius, Diomedus, Velius Longus, and Priscian. To Plautus's works is subjoined a description of the Greek play, called Cottabus, with a cut exhibiting a representation of it. The book seems to have been printed a little before the commencement of the sixteenth century. Har. Cat.

Marcus Accius PLAUTUS, so called according to Sextus Pompeius, because he had broad and flat feet, was born at Sarsina, a city of Omoria, about 205 years before the Christian æra. He acquired great reputation and great riches at Rome by his plays; but it is said he lost all his gains in traffic, and was obliged to hire himself to a baker, to turn his mill, in order to get the necessaries of life. He wrote 130 comedies, only twenty of which, and those not all perfect, have reached our times.

CAH PLINII SECUNDI Historiæ Naturalis, libri xxxvii. fol. Venet. Jo. de Spira, 1469. EDIT. PRINC. Beautifully executed, and extremely rare. Sold at the Vallierian sale in 1784, for 1699 livres, 19 sous; and at the Hotel de Bullion in 1786, for 3000 livres.

Many respectable Bibliographers have supposed there was an edition of the Natural History of Pliny previous to this: as Cornelius Beughem in his work Incunabula Typographiæ, 18mo. Amstel. 1688, p. 110 (falsely printed 101), mentions an edition thus: Historiæ Naturalis, libri xxxvii. noctibus et horis subcisivis Conscripti, Veronæ, 1468. Every person who have looked into Beughem's work, knows it abounds with errors, perhaps beyond any book ever published. It is therefore very likely that Veronæ MCCCCLXVIII. is a mistake for Venet. MCCCCLXVIII. The following considerations lead me to conclude thus: 1. The edition stands solely on the authority of Beughem, who might have either misquoted the edition, as he does several, or found such a work mentioned on some sale catalogue, in which places and dates are repeatedly changed and misplaced. 2dly. Beughem does not mention the Venetian edition of 1469. A presumptive evidence that he, or those from whom he quoted, had misnamed and misdated it, as his book seems to shew. 3dly. It does not appear that printing had been established at Verona before 1470, as the first book printed in that city was the Batrocomiomachia d' Omero, 8vo. In Verona die xv. Januarii MCCCCLXX. 4thly. Alexander Benedict, who published an edition of Pliny in 1507, mentions Spira's edition as the first; had there been one at Verona in 1468, it is not likely that one who lived so near the time could have been ignorant of it, especially as the nature of his work necessarily led him to consider what preceding editors had done. We may therefore conclude that no such edition as that of 1468 ever existed.

CA. PLIN. SECUN. Hist. Natur. ex recens. Jo. Andr. Episc. Aleriensis, fol. Rom. Swein. & Pannartz, 1470. A very good edition.

———— ex recens. Jo. Andr. Episc. Alerien. fol. Rom. Swein. & Pannartz. 1473. A very incorrect edition, in which the text of Pliny is sadly mangled.

———— 8vo. Pars prima, et secunda, Venet. Ald. 1540. This is precisely the same edition as the preceding, as the most careful examination of copies with these different dates sufficiently proves. And it is the last work in which the association of the heirs of Aldus and Andrew d' Asola appears; as the works printed afterwards, till 1559, bear the imprint Apud Aldi filios, without any mention of the children of D' Asola. It is true that we find works, particularly about 1549, proceeding from the Aldine press at the joint expence of both families ; but this appears to have been such an occasional union as is frequent among booksellers who have a share in particular works. See Mr. Renouard.

Cæcilius Plinius Secundus, sprung from an illustrious family, probably at Verona, for the place of his birth is not certainly known. He first took up the profession of arms, and was one of the college of augurs, and intendant of Spain. His vast information and unimpeachable probity, caused both Vespasian and Titus, not only to honour him with their friendship, but to employ him in very important affairs. His death was tragical. There was a terrible eruption of Mount Vesuvius, A. D. 79; Pliny being at that time in the vicinity of this awful mountain, approaching too near, with a desire to investigate the cause and nature of this dreadful phenomenon, was destroyed by the flames. The particulars of this awful event we have in the twenty-sixth letter, book sixth, of Pliny the younger, addressed to Tacitus. From the circumstances of his death, Pliny has been termed The Martyr of Nature. His death happened in the fifty-sixth year of his age. In concluding this account of Pliny, and the different editions of his work, I may be permitted to express myself, in reference to my own countrymen, as the learned Tiraboschi does to his. “It is most earnestly to be wished, that a society of able Englishmen, geographers, naturalists, philosophers, astronomers, physicians, and professors of the fine arts, would unite together and give an accurate version (with ample notes) of the text of this great, valuable, and difficult author, as no one man can possibly execute so arduous a task.” Philemon Hollond has done much, but it was impossible for him, or any other individual, even in this age of superior information, to do what is necessary, to render this invaluable author more extensively useful.

C. PLINII Secundi Cæcilii EPISTOLÆ, fol. sine loco. 1471. EDIT. PRINC. Lewis Carbo was corrector of the press, as he affirms in his epistle dedicatory: it is evident that the work was printed in Venice by Christ. Valdarfer, in whose office Carbo was corrector.

C. Plinius Secundus Cæcilius, commonly called Pliny the younger, was sister's son to Pliny the elder, and was born at Como, a town upon the lake Larius, in A. D. 62. His father died young, he had the famous Virginus for guardian, and Quintilian for his instructor in rhetoric. He began to plead at the bar when only eighteen years of age, and consecrated his rare abilities in this line to the indigent, his friends, and his country, never selling either his tongue or his pen for money. He was made consul by Trajan, A. D. 100, and afterwards made proconsul of Bythynia, whence he wrote that famous letter in the behalf of the persecuted Christians, which is still extant in his epistles, with the Emperor Trajan's rescript: the only genuine piece of Ecclesiastical antiquity relative to the times immediately succeeding the Apostles, it being wrote about forty years after the death of St. Paul. When Pliny died is uncertain—it is thought his death happened a little before, or soon after that of Trajan; about A. D. 116.

Plinius Valerianus was an empiric physician, of whom very little is known. He is mentioned in one of Gruter's Inscriptions, p. 635, i. and by Paulus Jovius de Piscibus Romanis, Cap. 35. He is supposed to have been of the same family with the two Plinys' already mentioned, but the work attributed to him is spurious. It was probably written by a person called Siburius, about A. D. 380.

Plotinus was a Platonic philosopher, born at Lycopolis in Egypt, in A. D. 204. He studied at Alexandria under the celebrated Ammonius, and when he became preceptor himself, had the famous Porphry for disciple. He is a very profound writer, and deserves, says Dr. Harwood, to be more read and better edited. He died in the sixty-sixth year of his age, A. D. 270.

Wytttenbach, 8vo. Oxon. 1795—1802, 11 vol. This is an invaluable and well edited work. When the notes and indexes are published, the learned professor will then proceed to the Lives; and when the whole is completed, we shall have just such an edition of Plutarch's works as the republic of letters greatly needed, and ardently longed for.

VITÆ et ETHICÆ, a Symone Grynæo, Gr. fol. Bas. 1560.

VITÆ, Gr. fol. Florent. Junta, 1517. Edit. princ.

———— Gr. fol. Venet. Ald. 1519. From several differences observed in copies bearing the same date, it is very likely that two editions of this work were published in the course of this year—one taken from the text of Phil. Junta, Florent. 1517, and the other much more correct than the Florence edition, containing various readings not to be found in that of Junta. After the title there is a preface of Fr. Asulanus to P. Bembo, in which are these remarkable words: Ut ab Agricolis poma, sic a librariis volumina jure donantur.

From this last corrected edition the text of the succeeding editions has been in general formed.

VITÆ, Gr. fol. Bas. Oporin. 1533. A valuable edition. Ibid. Gr. fol. Froben. 1560.

———— G. et Lat. cum not. var. ab Aug. Bryan, 4to. maj. vol. i. 1729, ii. iii. iv. 1723, v. 1724. 8l. 8s. A very splendid work, with the heads of the illustrious persons engraven from Gems.

ETHICA, ex emendat. Demetrii Ducæ Cretensis, Gr. fol. Venet. Ald. 1509. This is the Edit. princ. of the Ethics. It should be in two volumes, the whole contains 1050 pages. At the end of Aldus's preface are the following words: Libuit hic subjungere Hendecasyllabos, quos, cum veni ad te Mediolanum lusisti extempore præ summo gaudio Adventus nostri, ut faciant et hi fidem mutui amoris nostri.

*Aldus venit en ! Aldus venit !
Nostrum Sinciput, Occiputque nostrum,
Mel, Sal, Lac quoque Corculumque solus,
Graios altera, et altera Latinos
Qui apprehendendo manu, reduxit omneis
In verum modo limitem, superbos
Victores superans Olympiorum.*

*Nunc o nunc juvenes ubique in urbe
Flores spargite. Vere nanque primo Aldus venit en ! Aldus ecce venit !*

This Impromptu might have done very well between friends in a private way ; but certainly has a very exceptionable title to immortality.

ETHICA, Gr. fol. Bas. Frob. 1542.

———— a Guil. Xylandro, fol. Bas. 1574. A valuable edition.

Ancient Latin Editions of PLUTARCH.

PLUTARCHI Liber de Viris Clariss. Græco Ser-mone in Lat. diversis plurimorum Interpretationibus Virorum illustrium translatus, Edit. Antiq.

sine Loco aut Anno.

From Campanus's Epistle to Cardinal Piccolomini, prefixed to this book, it appears, that it was printed by Udalricus Gallus, at Rome, about the year 1470. That printer published at the same time, Donato Acciajoli's Life of Charles the Great, King of France, in Latin, which was bound up with this edition of Plutarch's Lives, contains prefaces and dedications which are not in later editions; it has also after Aratus, the lives of Galba, Otho, Evagoras, Pomp. Atticus, Rufus, Pluto, Aristotle, Homer, Virgil, and Carolus Magnus. After the table of lives, are the following verses:

Anser Tarpeii custos jovis: unde: q. alis.
Constreperes: gallus decidit: ultor adest:
Udalricus Gallus: ne quem poscantur in usum.
Edocuit pennis nil opus esse tuis.
Imprimit ille die: quantum non scribitur anno Ingenio: haud noceas: omnia vincit homo.

Latin editions of Greek writers made long before the Greek text was printed, may be of considerable importance ; as when faithfully done, they shew the readings of the MSS. from which they were made.

Plutarch was born at Cheronea, in Boetica, about forty-eight or fifty years before the Christian æra. He was taught philosophy and the mathematics, by the celebrated Amonius, who had left Alexandria and settled at Athens. He travelled through Greece and Egypt, in order to perfect himself in useful knowledge ; and came at last to Rome, where he taught philosophy, and was raised to the proconsular dignity by Trajan. After the death of this Emperor, he returned to his own country, and settled at Cheronea, and gave this for reason : I was born in a very little city, and to prevent it from becoming less, I chuse to dwell in it. When he died is uncertain : Fabricius thinks his death happened in the fifth year of Adrian, when he was in the seventieth year of his age. The writings of Plutarch are justly allowed to be the most valuable remains we have of Pagan antiquity.

Jo. Bap. PODESTÆ cursus Grammaticus linguar. orient. Viennæ, Aust. sine an. 2 vol. 4to.

POESIS PHYLOSOPHICA, a Stephano. This contains Empedocles, Xenophanes, Timon, Parmenides, Cleanthes, Epicharmis, and Orpheus, 8vo. Par. 1573.

POETÆ SACRI. The Sacred Poets, may be divided into two classes: the first contains those who wrote by Divine Inspiration, flourished before the Christian æra, and wrote in Hebrew. The second contains those uninspired, but holy men who wrote either in Greek or Latin, after the establishment of Christianity.

CLASS the First.

To this class only those in the Old Testament belong, whose writings form a part of that sacred book; the chief of whom are MOSES, JOB, DAVID, SOLOMON, JEREMIAH, JOEL, and HABBAKKUK, whose compositions are well known. Their works were the first models of sublime poetry—they had GOD for their subject, and their writings contain an astonishing description of his Being, Nature, Attributes, and Providence. They excel particularly in displaying his Majesty, Justice, Holiness, Goodness, and Mercy. Had these august writings nothing else to recommend them, their sublime simplicity would ensure them a duration as lasting as time itself.

The celebration of the Israclites' passage through the Red Sea, commonly called the Song of Moses, recorded Exod. xv. v. 1.—19, is the oldest piece of poetry in the world. Besides the writings mentioned above, we have some occasional poetic effusions from pious individuals, which the sacred writers have thought proper to record. Such as that incomparably sublime song of DEBORAH, Judges, Chap. v. 1—31. and the Thanksgiving of Hannah, 1. Samuel, ii. 1—10. with some others of inferior note.

In the New Testament, the poetic influence scarcely ever appears, except in the Magnificat, or Song of the Blessed Virgin, Luke, ii. 46—55. which is a copy of Hannah's song mentioned above:—the song of Zacharias, Luke, i. 68—79. The Nunc dimittis, or Song of Simeon, Luke, ii. 29—32. In the Epistle of James, there is a certain poetical cast which does not appear in any other part of the New Testament: and in Ch. i. 17. there is a perfect Hexameter verse; whether formed thus by design, or accident, does not appear. The first line is a perfect hexameter, the second becomes such by a small transposition.

Πασα δοσις ἀγαθη, καὶ παν δωρημα τελειον,
 "Ις' ἀπο των Φωτων πατρος καταβαινον ανωθεν.

*Every goodly gift, and every perfect donation,
 Is from the Father of Lights; and from above it descendeth.*

—As among the extraordinary gifts in the primitive church, that of Psalmody is mentioned 1. Cor. xiv. 26. It has been conjectured, that these are two of the lines which were then sung; and which St James has here quoted, to shew what truths the primitive Christians taught one another in Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs. Coloss. iii. 16.

CLASS the Second.

Containing those POETS, Greek and Latin, who wrote on divine subjects after the establishment of Christianity.

COMMODIANI AFRI Liber adversus Paganos, a Nic. Rigaltio, 8vo. Tulli Leucorum, S. Belgrand & J. Laurentius Typogr. Regii, 1650. Edit. princ.

———— cum notis, Rigaltii, H. Dodwelli Dissertatione, & Præfat. H. L. Schurtzfleischii, 4to. Witteb. 1705. Edit. opt. To which was added a supplement of notes, 4to. 1709. Mr. Davies republished this at the end of his edition of Minutius Felix, 8vo. Cant. 1712.

This writer was also termed Commodianus Gæus. He lived about the end of the third, or beginning of the fourth century. His work is composed in a sort of verse destitute of measure and cadence; each line however comprizes a complete sense, and begins acrostically. He termed himself Christ's Beggar, and preached poverty in an appropriate and ragged style.

PARADISUS seu TETRASTICA MORALIA, a Frid. Morellio, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Par. 1593.

POETÆ CHRISTIANI, 4to. Ven. Ald. 1501—2, 2 vol. This is an extremely rare and valuable work. The design of Aldus in publishing this collection was, that it might be used in schools in place of the heathen poets. The principal authors contained in it are, Prudentius, Prosper of Aquitain, Sedulius, Juvencus, Arator, Gregory Nazianzen, &c. On the last leaf of the preliminary discourse in the Sedulius of this work, the Aldine anchor is for the first time employed. The same anchor of a large size is found at the beginning and end of the second volume. Some Bibliographers mention three volumes of this work; but this probably arose from the Prudentius, and Sedulius, &c. which form the Latin part of volume second, being bound separately.

POETARUM VETERUM ECCLESIASTICORUM opera et Fragmenta, a Geo. Fabricio, 4to. Bas. Oporin. 1564. A very valuable collection, and far more copious than the preceding. For other collections of less importance, see JUVENCUS and PRUDENTIUS.

POETÆ LATINI VENATICI et Bucolici, cum fragmentis VESTRICII SPURINNÆ, a Casp. Barthio, 8vo. Hanov. 1613. The fragments of Vestricius Spurinna are published here for the first time.

Vestricius was a lyric poet in the time of Vespasian; but the fragments mentioned above are supposed to be the work of a Christian author of an uncertain age.

———— a Jano Ulitio, 12mo. L. Bat. Elzev. 1645 & 1653. Both valuable editions.

ECLOGÆ VARIORUM, 8vo. Florent. Junta, 1504. A rare edition, which contains the Eclogues of Virgil, Calphurnius, and Nemesianus: besides these modern authors, Pomponius Gauricus, Petrarch, Boccaccio, and J. Bap. Mantuanus.

POETÆ TRES EGREGII, a Georgio Logo, 8vo. Venet. Ald. 1534. This rare collection contains Gratius Faliscus, Calphurnius, and Nemesianus: it has also OVID's Halieuticon, and ADRIANI CARDINALIS's Venatio.

BUCOLICORUM AUCTORES xxxviii. quotquot videlicet, a Virgilii ætate, ad nostra usque tempora fuere, 8vo. Basil. Oporin. 1546.

POLITIANI (Angeli) Miscellaneorum, lib. Small folio. 1l. 11s. 6d. Flor. 1489. The edition of the Miscellanea of Politian, mentioned here, has not been taken notice of by Maittaire. The book is most beautifully printed; and it is observable, that the Greek character in it almost intirely agrees with that of the Greek mss. of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, and is without accents. At the end there is the typographical mark of Antonius Miscominus, the printer, who finished the impression, September 17, 1489.

———— 4to. Bolon. 1494.

Angelus Politianus was born at Monte Pullciano in Tuscany, A. D. 1454. He took his name from that of the town whence he was born, which was called in Latin, Mons-Politianus; his family name was Bassi. He was one of the most eminent and elegant scholars of his time. He died in 1494, in the fortieth year of his age. For an entertaining and well written account of this author and his works, see his life by the Rev. Mr. Greswell.

———— a Tib. Hemsterhusio, Edit. opt. 2 vol. fol. Amst. 1706. 1l. 11s. 6d. Large paper 2l. 12s. 6d. Fabricus highly extols this edition of the Onomasticon of this very learned and incomparable author.

Julius Pollux was a Greek grammarian of Naucrates in Egypt, about A. D. 180. He was professor of rhetoric at Athens.

Julii POLLUCIS Historia Physica, seu Chronicon, ab Ignatio Hardt, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Monachii & Lipsiæ, 1792.

This author is not the same with the above: he probably flourished about the end of the fourth century. The Chronicon begins at the creation, and comes down to the reign of the Emperor Valens.

Mr. Hardt supposed that this work was just newly discovered ; but the Abbe Morelli has proved that this is the same work with that of the anonymous Greek writer, entitled HISTORIA SACRA ab orbe condito ad Valentinianum et Valentem Imp. a Jo. Bap. Biancono, Gr. et Lat. fol. Bonon. 1779.

POLYÆNI Stratagemata, ab Isaac Casaubono, Gr. et Lat. ex versione Hermanni Vulteii, 8vo. Lugd. 1589. Edit. princ.

———— a Sam. Mursinna, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Berol. 1756.

It is very much to be wished, says Dr. Harwood, that this entertaining writer, whose language is very easy and elegant, were introduced into our schools ; or that those who begin to learn the Greek language, would read Polyænus. They would meet with few difficulties, and would be highly entertained and improved.

Polyænus was a Macedonian, and flourished under Antoninus and Verus, to whom he dedicated his book of stratagems, during their war with the Parthians.

———— a Joan. Schweighaeuser, Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Lips. 1789—93, 9 vol. 6l. 6s. This costly and elaborate work contains a complete apparatus to the history of Polybius. The six first volumes contain the text, and the three last are filled with notes—a geographical and historical index—the preface of Casaubon—and a very copious Lexicon Polybianum. Kett. This may be safely pronounced the Edit. opt. of Polybius.

Polybius was a famous Greek historian, born at Megapolis, in Arcadia, about 205 years before Christ. He learned politics from his father Lycortas, who was chief of the republic of the Achæans; and was trained to arms under Philopœmon, one of the most intrepid generals of antiquity. His history was originally written in forty books, five only of which remain, and a few fragments of others. Polybius is more accurate in matters of history and geography than most of the ancient historians. Titus Livius has borrowed whole books from this author, and yet only speaks of him haudquaquam spernendus auctor, as an author by no means despicable. Miserable acknowledgement of great obligations!

Smyrnensis Ecclesiæ de POLYCARPI Martyrio Epistola, ab Usserio, Gr. et Lat. 4to. Lond. 1647. The Epistle of Polycarp may be found in most collections of the early records of the primitive church.

Polycarp was a disciple of John the Evangelist, and afterwards bishop of Smyrna, and supposed to be the angel or messenger of the church of Smyrna, to whom Christ ordered St. John to send that epistle, Revel. ii. 8—11. He was found guilty of being a Christian by the Roman proconsul at Smyrna, and condemned to be burned alive. When he was going to the flames, the proconsul offered him his life if he would blaspheme Christ. To which the venerable prelate answered: Eighty and six years have I served him and he has ever treated me with kindness, how then can I blaspheme him? He was then committed to the flames, where he expired A. D. 166, in the ninety-fifth year of his age.

He was highly esteemed by the Emperor Honorius, but when he died is uncertain. Some of his poems are allowed to possess a considerable portion of the true poetic spirit. His hymn on the holy innocents is peculiarly happy.

PSALTERIUM Latinum, fol. Mogunt. Joan. FUST & Petrus SCHOFFER de Gernszheim, 1457. This is one of the rarest of rare books, and the first that bears a date. The characters are the large missal kind, and very nearly similar to those of the Bible, mentioned vol. i. p. 185. The work is invaluable, because it serves as a guide to fix the epoch of the origin of printing, and to ascertain the first types employed by Guttenburg, the inventor of this most useful art. There are but a very few copies of this book extant; and next to the Bible mentioned above, it must be considered the most precious relic of typographic antiquity.

———— editio altera, fol. Moguntiae, per Joan. FUST & Petrum SCHOFFER de Gernszheim, an. 1459. This is a larger folio than the former, and though very similar on the whole, yet has some small differences, and some prayers which distinguish it from the preceding. The copies of this are even scarcer than those of the former.

PSALMORUM Codex, Editio antiqua, Moguntiae, per Schoeffer, sine ulla nota. Printed on vellum.

There is no account of this scarce edition by any Bibliographer, it corresponds page for page with the edition of 1459, and ends with Canticum Ysaie, but the next page of the leaf is completely blank; it is executed with the large missal type employed in the Psalter of 1459, and the rubrics of the psalms, words of the chant, &c. are of the smaller missal type used for the Psalter of 1457, so that it is a specimen of the two first types to which the inventors of printing have affixed a positive date. This volume contains 158 leaves. On Edward's Catalogue, 1796, valued at 40l.

———— fol. Moguntiae, per Petrum Schoeffer de Gernzheim, 1490. There was another edition by Schoeffer in 1502, which was the last book he printed, all of which editions were done with the same, or very nearly the same types.

Septem PSALMI Penitentiales cum horis beatæ Mariæ Virginis, 32mo. Venet. Nic. Jenson, 1474. A very valuable edition. Many have asserted, that all books printed in the fifteenth century, were either in folio or quarto; but this is a mistake; there are many editions still extant in 8vo. and even in 16mo. such as the Psalters of Gabr. Petri, and Lewis Reuchen, mentioned above: nor were the ancient printers confined to those forms, for we find from Jenson's Psalter that they came down so low as 32mo.

———— a Decadyo, Venet. Ald. sine anno, 32mo. The existence of this edition is very doubtful. It is probably the edition of the Horæ, with the seven Penitential Psalms in Greek, printed by Aldus in 1505, with the last leaf cut off, in which the date is found. Mr. Renouard thinks this is the more probable, because at the bottom of the last leaf but one, the word ΤΕΛΟΣ is found. This edition is in octavo.

————— SEXTUPLEX Hebr. cum duabus Græcis, et tribus Latinis Versionibus, 8vo. Lugd. Gryph. 1503.

————— TRIPLEX, ab Erasmio, Heb. Gr. et Lat. fol. Basil. Amerbach. 1518, & fol. Basil. Froben. 1531.

————— ab Atropæo et Campensi, Hebr. Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Lips. 1533, & Basil. Henr. Petri, 1545, 1548, & 1569.

————— Hebr. Gr. et Lat. fol. Vitteberg. 1565.

————— G. et Lat. a Jo. Crestono Placentino, fol. Mediol. 1481. This is the first edition of the Greek Psalter, and an exceeding scarce book. Sold at Dr. Askew's sale for 16l. 16s. Some copies are found with the following subscription: Mediolani impensa Bonaccursii Pisani 1481, die xx. Septembris. To a copy of this kind a Theocritus has been found annexed, printed with the same characters. See THEOCRITUS.

PSALT. Gr. 4to. Venet. per Alexandr. ex Candace, 1486.

———— a Justino Decadyo, Gr. 4to. Venet. Ald. sine anno. A very scarce and well printed work. Certainly printed before 1498, as it is on Aldus's catalogue printed in this year; and not prior to the Aristotle printed in 1496, as the characters are the same, but appear worne in the Psalter, whereas they are new in the Aristotle. See Renouard. It is likely the work was printed in 1497.

PSALTERIUM, ex mandato Victoriosissimi Angliæ Regis Henrici Septimi, Lond. per Guill. Facques Eximiæ raritatis Liber, 8vo. Reg. Impres. 1504. 1l. 5s. A Lond. Catal.

———— a Demetrio Zeno, Gr. 4to. Venet. Steph. de Sabio, 1524. A rare work.

———— Gr. et Lat. 16mo. Paris. Carola Guillard, 1545.

———— Juxta exemp. Vaticanum, Gr. 12mo. L. Bat. Elzev. 1653.

———— Gr. et Lat. 8vo. Oxon. 1678.

———— a Jos. Blanchinio, Gr. cum Ital. versione, fol. Rom. 1740. Annexed to the Canticles.

For other PSALTERS, see under BIBLIA.

It is unnecessary to say that David, king of Israel, was the author of the book of Psalms. He flourished about 1050 years before Christ, of whose nature, sufferings, kingdom, and glory, he clearly prophesied. The Psalms have been translated into most languages of the universe—but all translators fall far, far below the sublime original, where sense and sound are often coupled together in such a manner as no poet, Greek or Latin, has ever been able to equal.

Grammaticæ Latinæ auctores antiqui ; opera et studio Helie PUTSCHII, Hanoviæ, Typis Weche-lianis, 1605, 4to. This is a very valuable work : it contains a collection of thirty-three ancient grammarians, with notes by the learned editor.

Elias Putschius was born at Antwerp in 1580. When but twenty-one years of age, he edited Sal-lust with fragments, and learned notes. He had but just begun his very useful career of literature, when he died at Stade, March 9, 1606, in the twenty-sixth year of his age !

A rare edition, and much esteemed on account of the notes of the celebrated and unfortunate Michael Servetus, who was burnt at the instigation of John Calvin, at Geneva, for his heretical opinions concerning the Trinity. Alas! alas!

Tantæne animis cælestibus iræ?

Claud. PTOL. Cosmog. ex ipsa Mich. Villanovani (Serveti) recognitione, fol. Lugd. 1541. This second edition of Servetus is also highly esteemed and very scarce. See Greek COLLECTIONS and MATHEMATICIANS, and SERVETUS.

Claudius Ptolomy was born at Pelusium, and flourished under Adrian and Marcus Aurelius, about A. D. 170. Though his system of the world is far from being correct, yet his works abound with very valuable astronomical facts and observations.

PUBLIUS SYRUS. See LABERIUS.

Latin Editions of PYTHAGORAS.

Hieroclis Philosophi in Aureos Versus PYTHAGORÆ, interprete Aurispa, 4to. Patavii, Barth. Zocchus, 1474. Edit. princ.

———— ab eodem, 4to. Romæ, Arnold. Panartz. in domo Petri de Maximis, 1475. Edit. 2da. Both very rare editions.

PYTHAGORÆ AUREA VERBA et SYMBOLA, fol. Venet. Ald. 1497. Annexed to Jamblicus, Proclus, Porphyry, Synesius, and others.

———— SYMBOLA moraliter explicata, a Philippo Beroaldo, 4to. Bonon. 1500.

———— LUDUS. The work begins thus: Qui recreandi causa ludo in Pitagoreo se exercere vulerint—primum sibi querant questionem aliquam, &c. and ends, Finis operis 1482. Die 21, Augusti. (Patavii) Matth. Cerdon. de Windischgretz.

The golden verses attributed to Pythagoras are now generally allowed to be spurious. Chrysippus attributes them to the disciples of Pythagoras; others to Lysis the Tarentine: some to Philolaus.

St. Jerom says, they were the doctrines of Pythagoras, reduced to verse by Archippus and Lysides, his disciples: and others suppose they were compiled by Epicarmus. For other writings attributed to Pythagoras, see Stanley, “Lives of the Philosophers,” p. 416, Lond. 1743.

Pythagoras was born at Samos, about 500, some say 592 years before the Christian æra. In order to gain useful knowledge, he travelled over Phœnicia, Egypt, Chaldea, and different parts of Asia Minor. He was institutor of the Italic sect of Philosophers. He set up a public school at Crotona, in the house of his friend Mylo, the famous wrestler, where he soon had between 4 and 500 disciples, though he obliged the most taciturne to observe a profound silence of two years; and those who where talkative, no less than five! Could all his wisdom and reputation procure him so many disciples, on these conditions, in any part of Europe, at this day? It is likely however, that this circumstance is misunderstood; and that all that is meant by it is: that he taught his disciples to restrain their tongues, to reflect deeply before they gave any opinion: and that he found it necessary to keep some two, others five years before he permitted them to dispute in the schools, or to teach publicly.

Of the real character of Pythagoras, it is difficult to judge. He certainly must have been a prodigy of learning in his time; and even in our day would rate high in the republic of letters. He was ardent in his pursuit of knowledge, and made use of all possible means to acquire it. By getting into the confidence of the priests in Egypt, he learned their sacred mysteries, theology, and the whole system of their symbolical learning. He was no less successful when in India, having derived from the Brahmins a complete knowledge of the philosophy and literature of the east. He appears to have been perfectly acquainted with the true Solar System, since called the Copernican, and now the Newtonian; and to have had a most profound knowledge of geometry. On his return from his travels he went to the Olympic games, and while pouring out torrents of political, physical, and divine science, his countrymen were so much astonished at the vast wisdom he had acquired, that they desired to know by what title they should address him? Your seven sages, said he, have taken the appellation of  $\Sigma\omicron\Phi\alpha\iota$  wise men, and they deserve it: but all that I dare lay claim to is  $\Phi\iota\lambda\omicron\sigma\sigma\Phi\omicron\varsigma$ . (a lover of wisdom.) From this humble title thus applied, came our modern term Philosopher; a term which is now assumed by multitudes in the proudest acceptance, who are miserably destitute of the true Pythagorean spirit. It is not known exactly at what time, or by what means, this extraordinary man, allowed to be in his person, one of the most perfect forms in nature, died:—some suppose he was killed ;—others, that he starved himself ;—and others, that he died a natural death in the ninetieth year of his age.
